FLATTENED IN FATAL rear-end crash on Patricia Bay Highway at Elk Lake Sunday evening was this car driven by George Wilk, 52, of 1278 Denman. His wife, Pauline, and 15-year-old Christopher Berryman in other vehicle died in crash. (Saanich Police Identification Branch photo.)

Two Killed at Elk Lake In Car-Truck Collision

Boy in Camper Dies at Scene

A 15-year-old boy and a mother of three children died Sunday night as a result of a shattering rear-end collision on the Pat Bay Highway at Elk Lake.

Dead are Christopher Berryman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Berryman of 5174 Santa Clara, and Mrs. Pauline Wilk of 1278 Denman. Three of the four other people involved in the accident are in good condition in hospital. Saanich police said the accident occurred at about 6:20 p.m. at the intersection of the highway and Piedmont Drive. A southbound pickup truck with low-roof camper unit had stopped to make a left turn on to Piedmont when a car crashed into the rear of it. A passenger in each of the vehicles was fatally injured.

Driver of the light truck was Maurice Neal, 42, of 9170 Inverness in North Saanich, who was taking two of his son Brian's friends home after a day's outing at the Neal residence.

The three 15-year-olds, Brian, the Berryman boy and Dennis Trill of 5045 Wesley, were in the rear of the truck under the camper roof.

Officers identified the driver of the other car as George Wilk, 52, of 1278 Denman. His wife, Pauline, was a front-seat passenger.

Mrs. F. R. Minter of 5126 Patricia Bay Highway said the crash, "like an explosion," sent the rest of her family rushing out to the accident while she phoned the alarm. There was a near-collision at the same intersection Sunday morning, she said.

There are two southbound lanes and one for traffic north at the point of the crash which Mrs. Minter described as "terribly dangerous."

Mr. Neal said today he was knocked unconscious by the collision.

Hiking Chums Killed

By TERRY IZZARD
A former Victoria boy and his city school chum were killed Sunday night hitchhiking home after visiting relatives.

The two were just south of Union Bay on the Trans-Canada Highway when a car smashed into them, killing both instantly.

Police identified one of the youths as Keith Peters, 15, of 431 4th Street, Nanaimo. Parents of the other 16-year-old boy were on their way from Victoria at press time to identify him.

According to police, the two chums were returning from Campbell River when the accident occurred.

It was 5:30 p.m. and already dark. A northbound car, driven by Norman Farmers, 38, of Courtenay, pulled out to overtake another vehicle and plowed head-on into the boys.

When RCMP officers arrived, the boys were already dead in a nearby roadside ditch.

Keith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Peters, said their son had been to visit his friend in Victoria Saturday. On Sunday they hitchhiked from Victoria to visit relatives in Campbell River.

Employers Turn Down Compromise Formula

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Maritime Employers' Association has rejected a compromise formula to end a tie-up of ports in the province.

Edward M. Strang, association president, said today there will be no reconsideration of the compromise proposed Sunday by Labor Minister Nicholson.

Under the compromise about 200 dock foremen on strike for employer recognition would get grievance procedure and the right to form a unit without joining the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

The foremen, now members of Local 514 of the ILWU, approved the formula at a meeting Sunday night.

A spokesman for the foremen said after the meeting that Mr. Nicholson's proposals "when signed by the employers, will return foremen to work immediately."

Mr. Nicholson commented at the time that "it's gratifying that one side thinks an early return to work is desirable."

CRITICIZES FORMULA
Mr. Strang branded the formula a "device" and a "very primitive form of collective agreement."

He said the association "made it plain Sunday morning we would reject it—we told the labor minister well in advance what our attitude would be."

Mr. Nicholson was "not immediately available for comment on the latest development in the dispute that has crippled cargo movement out of ports, resulted in a record backlog of Premier Bennett today made an urgent appeal to employers to accept a federal formula for settlement of the B.C. dock tie-up.

He complimented federal Labor Minister John Nicholson for proposing the formula and said he appreciated the foremen's decision to accept it.

"I call on management now, in the best interests of British Columbia, to accept the formula forthwith," Mr. Bennett added.

Policemen Kill Fleeing Gunman

VANCOUVER (CP)—A young man was shot to death by police following a running gun battle through Vancouver streets early today.

Police converged on the Smilin' Buddha about 2 a.m. shortly after receiving a telephone report that a man armed with a revolver had fired several shots inside the east-end nightspot.

Police arrived as the man was coming out the door and he fired upon them. They returned the fire, but the man dashed down the street and led police on a chase through streets and alleys.

The chase ended at Powell and Main Streets in the Skid Road area where the man fired several more shots, striking several police cars. No policemen were injured.

Police again returned the fire, this time hitting the man in the chest and between the eyes. He died on the spot.

Police identified the victim as Hughie Wayne Francis, 27. A police spokesman said the man was well known to them.

The name of the constable who fired the fatal bullet was withheld.

Police said it was a "miracle" no policemen were hit by bullets.

"It may not be the settlement they wanted, but I ask them to accept it forthwith." Immediately following the premier's pleas, the employers went in to an emergency meeting to discuss the matter.

The formula proposed that foremen have the rights of grievance procedure and of association to process such disputes.

A management representative indicated it would be rejected because it could lead to inclusion of the foremen in a union.

The premier said the dispute was entirely within federal jurisdiction but was so important to the nation that he did not wish to appear to be sitting on the fence by concealing his feelings.

Mr. Bennett said the dock tie-up affects not only B.C. but the prairies and other parts of Canada.

Britain Moves To Invoke World Boycott

(Times News Services)

Britain moved tonight to invoke world-wide trade sanctions against Rhodesia after Premier Ian Smith's refusal to call off the breakaway colony's rebellion.

Smith told a "crowd" waiting outside his Salisbury office at 8 p.m.: "The fight goes on."

The terms for eventual rule by Rhodesia's black majority had been worked out in a conference between British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Smith in a weekend conference aboard the cruiser HMS Tiger in the Mediterranean.

Wilson gave Smith until noon today to accept the terms.

Smith said he accepted Wilson's proposed constitution but he is not willing to accept Wilson's terms for ending the Rhodesian rebellion and a return to what he called legality.

These terms apparently included giving power to the British-appointed governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, over the police and armed forces and the power to appoint ministers.

The Wilson terms also included a demand that five members of the Rhodesian government should come from outside. Smith's ruling Rhodesian white-minority front party and that number must include two Negroes.

First Steps Taken at UN

Wilson was expected to spell out later tonight British intentions in a report to the House of Commons.

The British already have taken first steps towards reference of the dispute to the United Nations Security Council.

The draft resolution on sanctions is understood to call for a United Nations order banning trade in major Rhodesian exports, but without the threat of force or a blockade. It makes no mention of oil, a vital Rhodesian import. Some of the African representatives on the sanctions committee are demanding that oil be included.

South Africa has already stated it would not abide by any order cutting off trade with Rhodesia. Wilson had warned Smith he wanted only a "straight yes or no answer."

Smith asked for more time to consider and Britain granted a brief respite so the Rhodesian cabinet could meet in emergency session.

Then Rhodesia announced it would not accept the terms.

Smith made it clear he was willing to accept constitutional proposals which fulfilled Britain's six basic principles as a basis for a constitution for an independent Rhodesia. These principles included guaranteed progress towards Negro majority rule.

He qualified his statement, however, saying Prime Minister Wilson's latest proposal under heading of a return to "equality are repugnant to the Rhodesian

'Keep Hands Off Hanoi'

HONG KONG (AFP)—The South Viet Nam National Front for Liberation (Viet Cong) radio today warned the United States against "further laying hands" on Hanoi.

The radio, quoted by the North Viet Nam news agency, said the blasting of the United States Psychological Warfare headquarters in Saigon and the mortar shelling of the huge Tan Son Nhut air base by Viet Cong forces were "reprisals to U.S. air bombing of various" popular areas on the outskirts of and in the centre of Hanoi.

Describing the raids on Hanoi as "an extremely grave escalation" of the war by the United States, the radio said that the Viet Cong would "hit them ten to a hundred times harder" should they continue to "lay their hands" on Hanoi.

New Safety Standards

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. government today proposed new highway safety standards, including helmets for motorcyclists, eye examinations for drivers, and mandatory car inspections.

SURVIVED 11 DAYS ON SNOW-COVERED MOUNTAIN

Battered Couple Crawl to Safety

By BUEL OSBORNE

COLVILLE, Wash. (AP)—A car stuck in the snow led to the rescue of a Canadian couple who survived 11 days after their plane crashed on a northeastern Washington peak.

Roy Brown, 35, of Saskatoon and his wife, Betty, 32, were reported in good condition today at Mount Carmel Hospital here.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown, the parents of six children, had been the object of a wide search in Canada and northeastern Washington since their single engine plane vanished Nov. 24.

They were flying to Vancouver to join relatives at the Grey Cup game Nov. 26.

There was no sign of them until late Sunday afternoon when Ron Ruble of Colville heard a cry for help as he was trying to dig his car out of the snow.

Ruble looked up and saw Mrs. Brown floundering through waist-deep snow.

"Wait for us," she cried. "Our plane crashed."

"We'll wait," said Ruble. "We're stuck."

Mrs. Brown helped free the car, saying, "I'll use this shoulder; it's the other one that feels like it's broken."

A few minutes later her husband, who had been following her down a logging road, reached the highway. Ruble, who had got stuck while taking his wife and 18-month-old son on a sightseeing ride, drove the Browns to Colville.

Doctors at hospital said they did not believe the Browns had any broken bones.

Brown said he had headed south across the Washington border after running into a heavy fog bank over Canada.

They headed toward a clear spot near Sherman Pass. Mr. Brown thought the plane would not be able to clear Copper Butte, so he banked the plane to the left (south). The aircraft stalled and crashed into the hillside about 200 feet from the top.

Mr. Brown received facial injuries and was unable to see for four days. During the six days they stayed at the site of the accident, they heard and saw aircraft flying overhead, but were unable to draw their attention.

Mrs. Brown climbed to the top of the mountain and spotted the flashing yellow light of a highway department truck on the highway below. They built a fire, hoping a motorist would see it and assist them, but again were unsuccessful in attracting attention.

During their stay at the crash site they slept in the cockpit of the aircraft.

On the seventh day, in waste-

deep snow, they walked out. Mr. Brown used two pieces of wood for crutches, and Mrs. Brown helped him to walk. It took them four days to walk an estimated eight miles.

The Browns stopped each evening about 4 p.m., built fires, and ate beans and peanut butter.

At 3:30 p.m. Sunday they

Joy-Filled Faces Decorate Brown Home

SASKATOON (CP)—The joy-filled faces of their six children decorated the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown Sunday a few hours after the children learned their parents had been rescued.

"I talked to mom on the telephone," said Lynn, 13, the eldest child. "The first thing I did was ask how dad was. Mom said he was fine except for some cuts and bruises."

Another daughter, 12-year-old Diane, said her mother reported her father was fine "but he was in a wheelchair."

"I guess I'll have to help dad learn how to get around on crutches for a while."

SHE LEARNED TO SMILE ... THREE POUNDS LATER

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

In Calcutta, India, earlier this year, a four-year-old girl was brought to a health centre weighing 10 pounds.

There are quite a few others like her, so Unitarian Service Committee workers at the centre weren't shocked.

They merely set to work to offset the effects of starvation and make the child healthy.

They gave her the best care the centre's limited facilities could afford, fed her frequently, and hoped she would pull through.

And she did. When USC director Dr. Lotta Hirschmanova saw the child a short time later on her tour of USC Asian relief projects, the little girl weighed 13 pounds.

She could move her eyes to watch her nurses as they moved around the room, although she was still too weak to move her head.

By this time she was also strong enough to smile. And smile she did—at her mother, at Dr. Hirschmanova, at the nurses and the doctor at the USC centre and at the world in general for having given her a chance for a life of happiness.

Most of all if she had been able she would have smiled at the thousands of generous Canadians who make USC aid to Indian children possible through funds such as the Times' Share with Asian Children Fund.

When Dr. Hirschmanova last saw her the little girl was still at the USC dispensary, gaining weight, smiling and moving around more every day.

HAPPY ENDING

Her case will have a happy ending, but not so many hundreds of similar cases, where food and medical aid from the USC or other relief organizations is not available.

USC aid to these pitiful cases of starving and neglected youngsters is directly dependent on contributions from more fortunate Canadians.

Crowd Shouts for Republic

He was applauded whenever, during his statement, he mentioned any point rejecting British proposals.

Many times during his speech members of the crowd shouted: "Republic, republic."

Smith's government seized independence from Britain last year rather than submit to British demands for eventual Negro-majority rule in the central African colony.

There were questions in London whether Smith had encountered cabinet opposition to the compromise which would have brought some relaxation in the Smith regime's anti-Negro policies.

Wilson won his own cabinet's backing for the projected agreement Sunday night but only after a three-hour session that demonstrated varying degrees of approval.

At least one senior minister was reportedly deeply disturbed, feeling that Rhodesia's white governed to an estimated 1,800 at the end of today's nine-hour meeting of his cabinet, Smith ended his brief statement: "Therefore ladies and gentlemen the fight goes on."

But Wilson pushed through cabinet endorsement of the "working document" as he calls it, to put total responsibility for success or failure on the Rhodesians themselves.

Wilson said on his return to London that the deal satisfied Britain's demand for unimpeded progress toward majority rule by Rhodesia's 4,000,000 Negroes.

He said it also accorded with the views of British Commonwealth leaders.

Britain promised the Commonwealth to seek compulsory sanctions against Rhodesia by the year's end if the rebellion was not ended.

Wilson said of the draft settlement: "There are one or two outstanding points. We shall not solve them by any further amendments or alterations. It is a matter of accepting it or rejecting it. All we want is a telegram saying 'yes' or 'no'."

crash and when he came to spectators had lifted the camper roof from his truck. It had been knocked free in the collision.

He suffered whiplash injuries and was the only one not hospitalized.

The Trill boy is in "fairly good" condition with multiple abrasions while Brian Neal, who suffered a leg injury, and Mr. Wilk with face cuts are both in "good" condition. All were admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Both the fatally injured people suffered head injuries. Berryman was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital and Mrs. Wilk died a short time after admission.

$3,000 DAMAGE

Police estimated damage in the crash at $3,000.

Christopher Berryman was a Grade 10 pupil at Royal Oak Junior Secondary School. Mrs. Wilk was the mother of three daughters, Marion, Geraldine and Karen.

The accident, in the middle of Safe Driving Week, pushes Saanich road fatalities to six for the year, three of them in the past three weeks.

HEAD-ON CRASH

In another weekend smashup, seven people including six children were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital after a head-on smash on the Sooke Road Saturday afternoon.

Five of the seven are listed in only "fair" condition today. One is in "good" condition and the other has been discharged.

Colwood RCMP said the accident occurred in the 2400 block Sooke Road when an English car carrying a family of five was in collision with an oncoming auto occupied by two brothers.

Mrs. Helen Barkanyi, 33, mother of the children and driver of the English car, is in fair condition with face and chest injuries.

Also listed as fair are Gabriella, 16; Steven, 15; George, 14, and Thomas, 4, all with multiple injuries. The Barkanyis live at 2030 Church.

In the other car, Harry Arnold, 18, of 975 Walford suffered a knee injury but was released from hospital Sunday.

HEAD INJURIES

His brother, Casey, 15, received head injuries but is in good condition.

All the victims were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Three ambulances were needed to take the injured away.

"Bodies were lying in all directions when we arrived on the scene," said Langford Fire Chief Allen Lequesne.

One of the youngsters was thrown through the windshield, he said. Two were lying in a ditch and another was pinned between the front and back seats of the car.

Mrs. K. S. Ensor, 2439 Sooke Rd., said she was in her car waiting in the driveway to cross the road when the Barkanyi auto spun into hers after the collision.

Four people were treated for cuts and bruises after a two-car crash at Johnson and Quadra early Sunday.

City police said a car driven by Richard Faulks, 196 Werra Rd., was northbound on Quadra when it collided with an auto eastbound on Johnson and driven by Herbert Mitchell, 418 Vancouver St.

Passengers in the Mitchell car, Marina Mitchell and Mary Durocher, 1125 Johnson, suffered knee injuries. Mr. Mitchell had head cuts.

George Burns, 1770 Fort, a passenger in the other car, also suffered head cuts.

Anti-Hussein Riots Erupt Once More

JERUSALEM, Jordan (UPI)—Rioting against King Hussein broke out again today in Nablus, Jordan's third largest city. A policeman was reported killed and several persons wounded.

The anti-government demonstrations were the first after several days of relative calm in the area where Israeli planes and jets struck Nov. 13 on a punitive raid against Jordan. The first riots were to demand arms to fight Israel.

Today's demonstrations were in protest against the government's ban of a meeting in Jerusalem of Jordanian Palestine leaders demanding stronger measures against Israel.

Both Egypt and Syria have used broadcasts to encourage the Palestine refugees to attack Israel. On Sunday the official Communist party newspaper Pravda in Moscow urged Syria especially to tone down its calls for a "war of liberation against Israel."

Jordan meanwhile agreed to demands by the Arab unified command that it attend a joint defence council meeting in Cairo to discuss possible moves against Israel. The council is dominated by Syria and Egypt.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Moist air continues to stream over the southern half of the Pacific, while in the north Arctic air covers the interior and is rushing out the mainland inlets to the sea. Almost five inches of rain has been recorded at Vancouver airport in the past week. In the same period rain in excess of 10 inches has fallen along the west coast of Vancouver Island. In the cool, dry air Prince Rupert has only managed .31 inches. Although some snow occurred in higher elevations in the lower mainland this morning the general picture of rain in the south and snow in the north should continue as major weather systems remain for the most part stationary.

18-BOGUS BILLS PASSED

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two more counterfeit $10 bills were passed in Vancouver Wednesday, police reported Friday. They said 18 such bills have been passed in the past two months.

EMPLOYERS

deepsea ships waiting for berths, and halted all grain movement.

Mr. Strang said a collective agreement is what the foremen wanted, with ILWU backing.

"They did not get it by going on strike so they went into a slowdown process and tried to force it that way," he said.

The foremen have to make up their minds, he said, whether they want to be foremen or longshoremen.

"This is a pressure move," he said. "Certainly the foremen would approve it because it's what they've wanted all along."

"Grievances weren't even mentioned when the foremen went out on their illegal strike or during the subsequent illegal slowdowns by the longshoremen gangs."

The foremen struck Nov. 17 to back demands for recognition by employers as a local of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union. They since have said they want only recognition, not necessarily with ILWU affiliation.

Longshoremen refused to cross the foremen's picket lines until the lines were lifted through a court injunction five days later. Then the employers accused longshoremen of a slowdown and stopped ordering gangs to work a week ago, bringing a full waterfront shutdown.

The employers say no gangs will be hired until the union gives an assurance in advance that the men will do a day's work for a day's pay.

The union has countered that any slowdown was caused by a lack of efficient supervisory personnel—the missing foremen.

More than 4,000 longshoremen are idle, plus another 2,000 forest industry employees. Further widespread layoffs are expected if the shutdown continues much longer. Lumber and pulp companies say they are running out of storage space.

Among the more than 75 ships tied up by the dispute are 22 waiting to take on grain cargoes. Longshoremen offered to work the grain ships, and to unload mandarin oranges for the Christmas trade, but employers said no. They said there must be a full return, and a no-slowdown guarantee, or no hiring at all.

Ray Atkinson of Saskatoon, president of the National Farmers' Union, held his own talks with both sides on the weekend, then called for trusteeship measures to get the men working and grain moving.

He suggested to Mr. Nicholson that the government set up an inquiry into the dispute after work is resumed under trusteeship.

reached Highway 395 and were picked up by Mr. Ruble.

Mrs. Brown said in an interview in the hospital today that "it was a question of sticking out hardships and waiting for the right moment to start our walk down the mountain."

She said they could see lights of cars on a highway they believed to be about one mile away, but found it more like eight miles after they began hiking out.

She said they spent seven days on the plateau and four days hiking down to the highway.

Mrs. Brown said she was injured in the crash and was able to salvage groceries, sleeping bags and a rifle from the wrecked plane.

She lit a fire in the snow near the wreckage, boiled water from melted snow, and bathed her husband's wounds. She took a small hatchet from the plane and cut two makeshift canes for him to walk on his injured ankle.

DAILY RATIONS

She said they nibbled daily on rations of beans, peanut butter and cereal candy, washed down with hot tea.

She said bathing her husband's face resulted in his sight returning about four days after the crash.

During their hike to the road, Mrs. Brown carried dry kindling in a binocular case for nightly fires. She also had tissue paper, newspaper and a magazine.

When they stumbled onto the highway, the Rubles were the first to hear their cries for help.

Heavy Damage Done To Hanoi Rail Yard

(Times News Services)

SAIGON (CP)—U.S. fighter-bombers for the first time attacked and heavily damaged one of North Viet Nam's major railway marshalling yards near Hanoi Sunday and struck again at the big oil storage depot near the North Vietnamese capital, a U.S. spokesman announced today.

North Vietnamese fighter planes challenged the American fighter-bombers while they were dive-bombing the oil depot and at least one of the Communist jets was shot down and another probably destroyed, the spokesman said.

American pilots reported that they left the Yen Vien railway yards six miles northeast of Hanoi in smoke which billowed 10,000 feet. They said they triggered a large secondary explosion and that a 30-foot fireball erupted in the key centre for marshalling supplies from Communist China.

Sixteen U.S. Air Force fighter-bombers pummeled the Ha Gia oil depot, 14½ miles north of Hanoi and the North Vietnamese sent out planes to challenge the Americans as they came out of their dive-bombing attacks.

U.S. spokesmen said the depot, hit for the second time in three days, contained 45 buildings, and could store nearly 3,000,000 gallons of petroleum. U.S. pilots reported heavy damage to buildings, a large secondary explosion and numerous oil fires.

No American planes were lost during the raids, despite attacks by the Soviet-built MIG-17 and MIG-21 jets and heavy anti-aircraft fire from the ground, the spokesman said.

While the air war swirled around the North Vietnamese capital, fresh fighting was reported on the edge of South Viet Nam's capital at the Tan Son Nhut airport.

In another development, North Vietnamese shore batteries today fired at and slightly damaged an American destroyer patrolling in international waters, the U.S. navy reported.

Coastal guns opened up at the U.S. 7th Fleet destroyer Ingersoll 17 miles north of Dong Hoi and it returned fire.

Pickets Force Major Chains To End Games

By SALLY RYAN

NEW YORK (AP) — After protests from picketing housewives, two U.S. supermarket chains have decided to drop promotional games.

Some others indicate they may follow suit when their current promotions end, an Associated Press survey showed.

In Kansas City, games may be on the way out altogether. Three supermarket groups in which customers win prizes.

Safeway Stores Inc., second-largest supermarket operation in the United States, announced this week it would get out of the game business in January, although its bonus bingo was credited for half of the chain's 1966 sales increase.

"They've run their course," said Robert Magowan, Safeway chairman. "We don't think they have raised prices, but if the housewife thinks that, we won't fight her."

Purity Stores Inc., an 84-store chain in northern California, dropped its sweepstakes games earlier, and offered a choice of blue chip stamps or a cash rebate of slightly more than 15 cents on $10.

"It has become abundantly clear to us that games have lost their popularity," said Harold Ward, Purity president.

A AND P UNDECIDED

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., which operates the largest U.S. chain, said in New York last week it was neither adding nor dropping promotional games now.

"But that doesn't mean tomorrow or next week we won't change," an A and P spokesman said.

"It is something always under study, and we leave it to our five divisions to work out their own promotions to fit local situations."

Then in Kansas City, A and P joined Kroger Co. and Milgram Stores, a Kansas City chain, in dropping games.

"Currently A and P doesn't have any games in its eastern division, from northern New Jersey to New England, but does in its other four divisions. Kroger Co. in Cincinnati, Ohio, third-largest chain, issues trading stamps and runs an assortment of games."

BOOST SALES

"We consider games and contests normal promotional programs, designed to generate the high volume supermarkets must have in order to merchandise at low prices," a Kroger spokesman said, before the Kansas City announcement was made.

The games such as Bonus Bingo and televised horse races came under fire this fall from housewives protesting that they added to food prices.

Safeway probably would have continued bonus bingo or started a new game if it hadn't been for the housewives' protests, Magowan said.

One firm, Strategic Merchandising Corp. of New York, has sold Bonus Bingo and other games to 4,800 supermarkets—including Safeway, A and P and National Tea.

It estimates the games paid nearly $8,000,000 in cash to 1,900,000 winners in the year ended Sept. 30—before the boycotts began.

In Portland, Ore., a spokesman for Fred Meyer Inc., which has Let's Go to the Race, said a decision on the game's future was being left to customers.

"If the customers don't want them, we will be happy to pass the savings along," a spokesman said.

Winnipeg Clerks Vote For Strike

WINNIPEG (CP) — Retail clerks employed by four supermarket chains voted in favor of strike action Sunday to back demands for salary increases that would give them parity with Vancouver clerks.

No date for the strike was set by Local 832 of the Retail Clerks' International Union.

A spokesman said 81 per cent of the 923 persons casting ballots favored strike action. There are 1,600 members in the local.

An estimated 57 stores owned by Safeway, Leblais, Dominion and Shop-Easy would be hit by the strike which, said a spokesman, may be called this week if negotiations do not progress.

REJECT OFFER

The union rejected a two-year contract which included a cumulative increase of 50 cents an hour during its lifetime. It called for a 20-cent-an-hour increase retroactive to Oct. 31, five cents May 1, 10 cents Nov. 6 and May 6, 1968, plus five cents when it would have expired Nov. 6, 1968.

Leader Hurt, Woman Killed In Collision

TORONTO (CP) — A car driven by Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario leader of the New Democratic Party, crossed a median strip on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway Sunday night and collided head-on with another car, killing Mrs. Mary Doddatto, 47, of nearby Rexdale.

Mr. MacDonald, 52, and the woman's husband, Andrew Doddatto, 50, are both reported in fair condition in hospital today.

The NDP leader was unconscious for an hour after the accident and suffered a possible fracture in the upper part of his spine, head, injuries which required 27 stitches and bruises.

Police said Mr. MacDonald's car braked suddenly to avoid hitting a line of traffic stopped in the eastbound lane of the freeway.

MIGHT HAVE TOPPLED SAIGON GOV'T

Ho Wanted To Talk But U.S. Said No!

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — President Johnson, in a letter to U Thant congratulating him on his re-election as UN secretary-general, said he will give "closest personal attention" to UN peace problems.

Meanwhile, Thant told a Newsweek magazine interviewer that Washington refused peace talks he tried to arrange with North Viet Nam in 1964-65, saying it feared even the rumor of a meeting might topple the Saigon government.

There was no apparent connection between Johnson's letter and Thant's interview. A state department spokesman said there would be no immediate comment on the Newsweek article.

Unanimously elected Friday by the UN General Assembly to a new five-year term, Thant told the assembly he would keep repeating that "this war must be ended" and that he would "make every effort on a personal basis" to promote a solution.

In the interview with Newsweek columnist Emmet John Hughes, Thant said he worked from September, 1964, to January, 1965, with the late Adlai Stevenson, then U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, to try to set up peace talks.

SAY HO NOT SERIOUS

The state department in November, 1965, admitted Thant had informed it North Viet Nam was willing to talk with the United States in Rangoon, Burma. The department said it declined because "all our indications were that there was no serious intent on the other side."

Thant said in the interview that in September, 1964, he got in touch with North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh through the Russians and Ho agreed to unofficial talks with Washington. He said Washington was informed but did not reply.

In January, Thant said, he pressed Stevenson for Washington's reaction and was told separate U.S. soundings through Canadian channels in Hanoi had convinced Washington Ho was not serious.

Later that month, Stevenson, acting on his own, asked Thant where and on what level talks could take place. Thant suggested a meeting between U.S. and North Vietnamese envoys in Rangoon, Burma. Burma agreed to such a meeting, Thant said, but Washington rejected it on grounds that even the rumor of peace talks might topple the Saigon government.

Thant notified Hanoi of Washington's refusal and 24 hours later the American bombing of North Viet Nam began.

The Newsweek article reported that high American officials confirm privately that President Johnson was "largely unaware of the essential facts of Thant's peacemaking efforts" until he visited Thant at the United Nations last month on the eve of his tour of Asian countries.

Civic Leadership

THE HIGH PERSONAL QUALITIES of the three mayoral candidates provide gratifying evidence of the condition of Victoria's civic politics today. With such a choice the voter's decision must be based on the criteria of leadership, of previous participation in the varied affairs of the community, and of ability to run the million-dollar-a-year business which the Corporation of the City of Victoria has become.

From these viewpoints, and with a full appreciation of the many favorable factors common to all three candidates, we feel that Mr. Hugh Stephen emerges as the preferred choice for the office of mayor of Victoria.

As a prominent and successful businessman of the city, Mr. Stephen has established a reputation for his energetic support of many worthy local causes. He was a major force in helping to raise public funds for the University capital campaigns, for the new YM-YWCA building, and other purposes. As president of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and a participant in other groups he has shown an interest in widely varying segments of the city's activities. But his particular interest and achievement in community planning and in conservation give him an especial fitness for the leadership of the city council at this time.

The great surge forward in improvement of the city's downtown features that was made under Mayor Wilson and maintained under Mayor Toone is one of the most important programs which still faces Victoria. Mr. Stephen is anxious to continue it, and is admirably equipped to do so, and this consideration alone should carry great weight with the voters.

Mr. Stephen, over the past few years, has a record of interest and active participation in all phases of the city's development under a planned program. He has served with the Victoria Advisory Planning Commission, he helped to form the Capital Region Planning Board, he has been a strong supporter of moves to create parkland and civic amenities in this area, and maintains a progressive and co-operative attitude toward the surrounding municipalities. Planning and rehabilitation policies for Victoria should be given high priority and every encouragement possible, for the future of the city depends in large measure on what is done in these crucial years of rapid growth throughout the region.

With an excellent record of council experience behind him, and being in a position to give full time to the office of mayor, Mr. Stephen wins our support as the best choice for mayor to guide the city through the present vital stage of development.

A Step Along the Democratic Way

SOUTH VIET NAM'S CONSTITUENT Assembly is making vigorous progress — on paper — toward bringing a decent, democratic system of government into being. When, or if, their deliberations will be translated into meaningful action is another matter, of course.

To date, anyhow, the Assembly has put together sixteen sections of the new constitution, including a very important, and possibly contentious, bar against any member of the armed forces running for office, serving in government or participating in the political process in any way beyond the right to vote as a citizen. This, of course, is accepted practice in all truly democratic states; members of the military services who wish to offer themselves for office are expected first to sever all connections with the service.

In South Viet Nam, however, it poses a problem since great numbers of the people in government service, from the military directorate headed by Marshal Ky down to province and district chiefs, are officers in the armed forces. It seems most unlikely that the military junta will allow any constitution containing this clause to be promulgated so long as, in their opinion, it would endanger the security of the state. And, in effect, this could mean that South Viet Nam might wait a long time for its constitution.

Other sections agreed on by the assembly include such standard guarantees as equality before the law, right of habeas corpus, freedom to travel, freedom of speech, press, religion, education, assembly, the right to associate in labor unions and the right to private ownership of land. None of these are guaranteed in any practical way under the present regime.

The assembly still has quite a way to go in its activities, giving consideration to constitutional resolutions on the executive, legislative and judicial branches of government. But its progress to date has been encouraging. Even though implementation of the constitution must depend on the willingness of the military to relinquish civil power, the assembly's work cannot fail to be an influence on the future of the Vietnamese people.

Today's Choice, Tomorrow's Necessity

THE CONTROVERSY OVER public acquisition of the Witty family property on the Metcosh waterfront for parkland appears to have become one of price. On this basis it should be possible to arrive at a figure that will be fair to the present owners and within reasonable reach of the taxpayers who will pay it.

The 40-acre lagoon property in question is one of the few suitable waterfront sites still available for parkland in the Victoria region. The chief concern of the regional authorities is to ensure that the property shall be saved for future public use. There is no rush to develop it at the present time—preservation is the object of the regional board—hence the owners need not be presented with a problem of immediate evacuation, although the land has no permanent habitation on it.

It would be most unfortunate if the site, which is almost without alternative in this area, should be lost to public parkland development and use through subdivision or other commercial disposal. Reserving areas for the use of a public which in the decades to come will number many times the present population is one of the major responsibilities of today's authorities.

We are no longer faced with a future of unlimited outdoor space for recreational purposes, but one in which firm plans for preservation must be formed and carried out. A chaotic and inexcusable situation will eventually plague the area if we do not recognize our responsibilities.

The Honest Workman

CITIZENS OF THIS COMMUNITY have paid high tribute to the man whom they consider the most durable hockey player of our times—Mr. Andy Heberton.

But the significance of the public reaction to his achievements runs deeper than expressions of praise for a sports career which has had its moments of glory. The "Andy Heberton Night" gave this community a chance to show its appreciation for the honest workman. He has given the unforgiving minute sixty seconds' worth of distance run.

Victoria is fortunate to have an example of his calibre to hold before our young people.

"...I'm looking for a nice little card to send to poor Mr. Diefenbaker... something sympathetic and yet, well... sort of GUTSY... you know..."

UNITED NATIONS, NEW YORK

U Thant's Success Is Still in Doubt

U THANT'S agreement to serve another five-year term as UN secretary-general has spared the world organization a serious constitutional crisis. It has also removed a possible source of tension and conflict between the United States and the Soviet Union — at a time when Moscow and Washington are gingerly exploring the basis for a new and less hostile relationship. On this much, the UN largely agrees. What, if anything, else has been accomplished by resolution of the three-month "mini-crisis" remains to be seen. Thant set out, in September, to do a great deal more. By first declining reappointment and then hinting he might be open to a draft, he clearly implied he wanted, in return for willingness to go on in a difficult and frustrating job:

1. Some reason to hope there would be progress toward a Viet Nam peace — and that he could make a contribution to that objective.
2. Willingness by the Soviet Union, France and other debtor nations to pay some of the money they owe the UN — if only in the guise of "voluntary" contributions — so he would not have to preside over a near-bankrupt organization.
3. Willingness by the Soviet Union and other states to let him exercise independent, free-wheeling authority in some areas — that is, to be more than a "glorified clerk."

Price of Consent Not Clear

It is not clear he has achieved any of this. In the language of diplomacy, it is not clear he has "sold" his consent for any substantial price.

Only time, of course can tell whether there will be progress toward a Viet Nam peace, or improvement in what might be called the working conditions of the UN secretary-general.

Thant is known to pin some hope on the 48-hour truce planned for Christmas and the two New Year holidays which are celebrated in Viet Nam. He links these brief cease-fires with a projected peace mission to the Far East by United States delegate Arthur J. Goldberg, and hopes Goldberg will be able to prolong them.

There is no visible evidence, however, that his hopes will be realized.

Similarly, although the Russians and French have indicated they will make voluntary contributions to the UN's coffers if the United States will do so also, Washington feels strongly that — its own dues being fully paid — there is no necessity for it to help Moscow and Paris save face.

The Kremlin's opposition to veto-free UN peacekeeping has not moderated; Russian delegates have made this abundantly clear in current General Assembly debate. Peacekeeping is the field in which they have put the tightest straightjacket on Thant.

Thus all three of the objectives the secretary-general sought to achieve are at best in doubt.

The fact that he nevertheless has bowed to overwhelming pressure and accepted another term is widely greeted here with relief and satisfaction. Some, however, wish he had held out longer and (or) bargained harder.

Can Quit Any Time

In the last analysis, Thant will still have the final word. He can still quit at any time, precipitating the constitutional crisis he had now delayed.

Thus if his key objectives remain unfulfilled, he can still embarrass those who are responsible — and the threat to do so will give him continuing bargaining power.

This is not the only benefit he has derived from forcing a draft. Thant personally gained stature during the three-month courtship. The virtually unanimous dismay at his first announcement, on Sept. 1, that he wished to retire; the chorus of pleas that he change his mind; and the general view that he is, if not indispensable, close to it, all added lustre to his career.

Stronger Position

Some observers are skeptical, but most believe Thant genuinely wanted to quit, given the conditions under which he has had to work. The conditions have not changed, but the world's appreciation of his contribution has been made more persuasively apparent.

Thant is at the core a sentimental human being, susceptible to demonstrations of friendship and esteem. They were showered on him in abundance, from virtually all sides—including, surprisingly, the Russians, who might have stood to gain much political capital from the ability to "sell" their consent to the appointment of a new man.

Why the Russians did not try harder to force a major crisis is not clear. Some observers think they did not dare buck the tide of sentiment for Thant. Others speculate that the Kremlin wanted to avoid a tug-of-war with the United States over an issue which is peripheral to its bedrock national interest.

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

The Biggest Spender

WHEN the tax structure committee produced its revenue and expenditure projections for 1971-72 at the October federal-provincial conference, Mr. Mitchell Sharp issued a cautionary statement noting that these were not forecasts but simply calculations based upon existing tax rates and certain specified programs.

Western

The projections indicated that federal government expenditures would rise at an annual rate of approximately 6 1/2 per cent which appears high when compared, say, with the annual improvement in productivity in this country.

However, it would probably seem a reassuring forecast to the senators who offered comments last week on the government's latest appropriation bill.

The fact is that total expenditures of the federal government have grown in the past four years by close to 50 per cent or almost double the annual rate calculated by the tax structure experts.

What is more, the spending surge has been gaining impressive momentum. In 1963-64, the increase over the previous year was slightly less than $464 million and in the next year it actually dropped to about $382 million. But in 1965-66, the increase was up to $943 million and this year to the remarkable figure of $1,381.6 million.

Plainly, such spending has far outpaced the increase in population. It may be regarded, according to the point of view, as a welcome or unwelcome development. But it quite certainly is not what the public was led to expect in the elections of 1962 or 1963. No leader at that time appealed for support on the ground that he would boost government spending by 50 per cent in four years. Nor has any since that time distinguished himself by his opposition to the big new programs and salary hikes which have brought expenditures to this level. In general, the Opposition cry has been "too little, too late" and the government has responded (and is still, in fact, responding) with schemes for bigger and better spending next year.

Meeting Public Demands

The usual explanation is that the government is simply meeting public demand and this is no doubt true if the politicians are accurate registers of public demand. Their position is not so different from that of the soap manufacturers who are firmly convinced that housewives want suds even though it is admitted they contribute nothing to the cleaning qualities of the products.

Nobody suggests today that spending is going to increase by another 50 per cent in the next four years. Nobody advocates it and it may not happen. It is theoretically possible that our political parties after the grand spurge of the '60s may run out of major spending ideas. But there are few signs of this yet and, on the basis of experience in the past four years, we have reason to look with profound scepticism on projections which show federal expenditures increasing at the sedate pace of 6 1/2 per cent per year.

This in no way invalidates the tax structure committee's other finding that provincial municipal spending will increase at an even faster rate.

But it probably goes far to explain Mr. Mitchell Sharp's attitude at the federal-provincial conference. The record suggests that a finance minister has limited power to curb the spending aspirations of his cabinet colleagues. As a prudent man, he will therefore do his utmost to defend his revenues. Mr. Sharp, in this respect, is a very prudent man.

WASHINGTON:

Demographic Nightmare

By JOSEPH ALSOP

THE U.S. census bureau has been doing some further work on population trends in the United States. The results point to the same old demographic nightmare of the American future — an urbanized nation with affluent white suburbs encircling rotting, mainly Negro core cities. On the surface, the results may not appear quite as hair-raising as they really are, for one must know how to read the figures.

Alsop

Briefly, Between 1960 and 1965, America's cities suffered a net decline of 270,000 in their total white population. The Negro population of the cities meanwhile grew by 2,000,000. And while the suburbs gained 9,252,000 whites, they admitted only 400,000 additional Negroes.

Some Cities Untouched

But these are overall figures, covering all the growing cities of the United States, including the larger cities that have not as yet become targets of intensive Negro immigration, and, above all, including the numerous smaller cities whence the white emigration to suburbs has not yet become a headlong flight.

Even so, an immense suburban immigration is concealed in the overall totals. For the white population of the cities instead of declining slightly, ought to have grown by 4,500,000 in the period in question. Thus nearly 5,000,000 people in the increased population of the suburbs are in fact refugees from the centre-cities, the rest being former country dwellers and the results of normal population growth.

One or two studies of individual cities have also been done by the census bureau. They were made for special reasons, and thus did not cover any of the more extreme and interesting cases, such as Baltimore or St. Louis.

One of the cities studied by the bureau was Cleveland. Its total population is now a bit above 800,000, which is a 65,000 decline from the former peak. Behind that decline, there is a loss of white population of 91,000, and a gain of Negro Clevelanders of 26,000. Overall, therefore, Cleveland is now 34.5 per cent Negro.

Buffalo

Buffalo is another city where the basic trend is not far advanced. With just above 480,000 population, it is still only 17.4 per cent Negro. But since 1960, Buffalo, too, has lost 13.5 per cent of its white population, and has increased its Negro population by 14.4 per cent.

For the most advanced cases — the cities that show us where we are really heading — overall figures are lacking, alas. But in Washington, D.C., the Negroes in the elementary school population have again moved up a notch, from just under 90 per cent to 92.8 per cent. In Baltimore, too, the Negro percentage of elementary school children has gone from 64.3 to 65.4, and in St. Louis, there has been a rise from 63.5 per cent to 64.5 per cent. The school figures obviously predict the ghetto-cities of the future.

Behind this process that is transforming American centre-cities into huge Negro ghettos, there are of course two sub-processes. One is the white immigration to the suburbs, above mentioned. The other is the Negro emigration from the south.

Flight From South

Most of the gain in Negro population in the centre cities represented this immense flight from the south. In the period since 1960, more than 2,000,000 Negroes moved from south to north, and the south's share of the total Negro population dropped from more than 60 per cent to about 53.4 per cent. Furthermore, this emigration is continuing.

The pressures that cause it are even being subsidized by the federal government. In Mississippi, for instance, soil bank payments are widely used by white farmers to retire part of their land from cultivation, and to mechanize the rest of their farming operation. As a result, by the best estimate available, at least 30,000 former sharecroppers and tenant farmers, all Negroes of course, are being driven each year to leave Mississippi for the northern cities.

Some Benefit

In one sense, perhaps, this trend is a good thing. While the Negro problem remained predominantly a rural problem, America's unequal treatment of its Negro citizens was merely a national dishonor.

It was not a danger. Now that the Negro problem is rapidly becoming a predominantly urban problem, however, it is becoming acutely dangerous to the whole fabric of American society. And so we may be forced to face the need to do something about it.

Let no one think, either, that white Americans can escape the Negro problem by the simple act of fleeing to the affluent suburbs. It is an urgent, a desperately urgent problem for every single American. And there is only one solution — to muster the resources, even if these be counted in tens of billions, that are needed to give American Negro citizens the jobs, the quality education, and the career opportunities they require.

Looking Back

From The Times of Dec. 5, 1966:

There has been a hitch over the construction of the new Empress Hotel in this city which will delay the opening. F. M. Rattenbury who designed the structure has resigned his position of architect and has been succeeded by Curtis of Vancouver who has gone east to confer with CPR officials. It had been intended to open the building in time for the summer season but there may be a wait of as much as two or three months. There is still a great deal to be done with in the building.

Why Are Canadians Such a Restless People?

The 'Overcrowding' Of Body and Spirit

By GERALD CLARK

(This is the first in a series of articles by Mr. Clark, well-known Canadian author and associate editor of the Montreal Star.)

We are living in the most affluent society in history, yet it is the most restless. That is, more people apparently are discontented, anxious or confused about values in life than ever before.

Two segments alone, youth and labor, depict the unease of Western man through rebellion and strikes. But other distinctive groups — the middle-aged, for example — also reflect the new and often disturbing forces.

Why is there so much disquiet?

The sociologists, psychiatrists and theologians are hardly unanimous about the reasons; and they admit only the vaguest notions of possible solutions. But there is fairly general agreement that some trenchant conditions exist today that were unknown only a generation or two ago.

For one thing, we are suffering from overcrowding. It is not the simple, flagrant kind of overcrowding that blights such teeming countries as India and China. In North America it takes on a subtle, devastating psychological form.

Simultaneously, we are caught up in the revolution of electronics, most dramatically illustrated by television, a medium which we understand only superficially but which is having a profound impact on every one of us.

Grim Warning

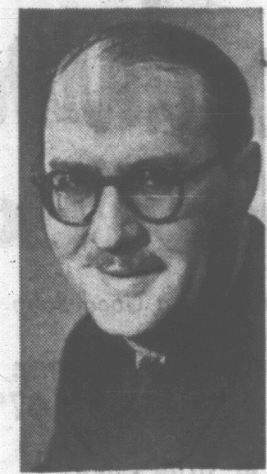

Marshall McLuhan, the latest savant of communications, says we live in "an information environment." Because of the grim way he says it, we had better take warning.

We are confronted with more knowledge than ever believed possible; it doubles in volume every 15 years. Obviously, we are unable to grasp more than a fraction of it. We compound our confusion by wondering whether, in adding to facts, we have suffered a loss of spiritual ideals or even, ironically, a loss of what is sometimes called "challenge."

The very real importance of challenge is demonstrated in a recent study in Montreal by researchers from McGill University and the University of Montreal. Part of the study dealt with juvenile delinquency in a densely populated area in the centre of the city.

Almost all families were of the same levels of low income and inferior housing.

But a remarkable distinction soon became evident between two main groups: those who could trace their roots in Canada back several generations and those who had migrated from Europe only in the last decade or so. Children, from age six to 18, showed among the long-established Canadians a "high pathology tract," 15 per cent at one time or another had been taken to court for car thefts or other crimes. Among the "New Canadians" the incidence was low; between two and three per cent in trouble.

The researchers came up with several explanations. One of the most obvious was that European family life tended to be closely and wholesomely knit.

But the prime conclusion was simply that the newcomers possessed a sense of challenge. They had heard of the opportunities in Canada and were determined to move as quickly as possible. Thus it was worth their while to struggle, often with wife as well as husband working, to face a wide-open contest in advancement.

Undoubtedly most will move on; a significant percentage already have graduated to better jobs and better districts.

In contrast, many of the old Canadians are bogged down by a resigned feeling that they are not going anywhere. Parents show little interest in improving the lot of their families. This negative attitude, the abandonment of the contest, is felt by the children and mirrored in their delinquency.

Need for Challenge

The need for positive challenge or involvement is, of course, not a new phenomenon. It has always existed, as have other forces that remain with us. But several factors coming together—the old and the new—are threatening to distort the meaning or continuity of a supposedly advanced Western culture.

The old story is familiar, since it has been written repeatedly in the last 50 or 60 years. Broadly, it tells of huge waves of migrants from overseas and of millions of people here on the prowl.

Industrial developments everywhere have wrenched men and women from agrarian surroundings and thrust them into cities, in the midst of strangers and strange ideas and strange patterns of living. Two world wars have intruded, along with a major depression and a half-dozen recessions.

Nevertheless, despite periodic uncertainty, we have made great gains in establishing for ourselves safer, healthier and longer lives.

In the process, we have built up anxieties. The more we enjoy, the more we are beset by fears that we will lose some of our comforts.

The psychiatrist, in recalling this background, is now impelled to look also at fresh data. It is only in the last few years that impressive studies have been conducted to show the effects of density of population pulled onto the previously known psychological problems.

"We have always accepted that people need time to solve their problems," says Dr. A. W. MacLeod, director of the Mental Hygiene Institute of Montreal. "Now we have to accept that they also need room to solve their problems."

More and more scientists are pointing out that there is a key element in our existence that we are only now beginning to comprehend: The importance of "space" or "territory."

Experiments with fish, birds, rats and other animals indicate that they become aroused chiefly when their territorial space is invaded or threatened.

In humans, there is a suggestion that each person requires a bubble of space about him, a shield to give him psychological security. The area is variable in shape and dimension from person to person and from time to time, but it is also remarkably consistent in that it fills a ritualistic purpose: to ensure that each person has a place in the community.

It is not much different from the way turkeys act in clusters; some are relegated to the periphery of their group and, when they come into contact with the perimeter of other groups, they start pushing.

Interest Roused

Interest in the subject has been stimulated largely by the work of Konrad Lorenz, the Austrian naturalist and pioneer in ethology, the study of instinctive behavior. Lorenz, whose latest book, "On Aggression," has attracted wide attention, notes that rats are social and peaceful beings within their clan but "veritable devils" even toward fellow-members of their own species that try to intrude on the established community.

Man's social organization, he says, is similar.

As an easy illustration, he suggests that the intricacy of the spacing out of territories can be observed in railway carriages: "All the rude behavior patterns serving for the repulsion of seat-competitors and intruders, such as covering empty places with coats or bags, putting up one's feet, or pretending to be asleep, are brought into action against the unknown individual only. As soon as the newcomer turns out to be even the merest acquaintance they disappear and are replaced by rather shamefaced politeness."

Another European scientist, Dr. Paul Leyhausen, claims that five years in prisoner-of-war camps taught him that overcrowded human societies reflect the symptoms of overcrowded wolf, cat, goat, mouse, rat or rabbit communities "to the last detail."

The inner machinery of absolute social hierarchy is not so obvious at first glance, he says; it emerges when crowding sets in.

Cause of Neuroses

But more than this, he has "no doubt whatever that a great number of neuroses and social maladjustments are partially or totally, directly or indirectly, caused by overcrowding."

No one has yet determined at what point density creeps surreptitiously beyond the tolerance limit of man. It is a matter of urgent consequence to Leyhausen.

"In recent years," he writes in "Discovery," a British journal, "there has been growing concern about the so-called population explosion and the measures to be taken to avoid overcrowding. However, this is mostly understood to mean that an attempt should be made only to slow down the population increase, so that the production of supplies, predominantly food, can catch up and if this is achieved, everything will be fine.

Tolerance Limits

"Contrary to current discussion, the danger of overpopulation does not rest solely on the need for food and shelter. It lies in whether the population will exceed the limits of human tolerance towards the presence of other humans."

Layhausen concludes that if the present trend continues, nobody will be able to move about without interfering irritatingly with the next person's movements and "at least half of the population will have to be psychiatrists tending the neuroses of the other half."

Not all psychiatrists will accept Leyhausen's gloomy prognosis. But an increasing number, here as well as in Europe, are talking of the effect of overcrowding on the spirit as well as on the body.

Uruguayans Back Presidential Rule

J. HALCRO FERGUSON

LONDON — Last week the people of Uruguay, which prides itself on being the most democratic nation in South America, decided that democracy can be carried too far. They voted to have a president again.

For 14 years and eight months the little country had made the experiment of doing without a head of state — a remarkable departure from the norm in a continent known for "strong men." The desire to limit the power of the executive was one of the reasons why a new constitution was approved by plebiscite in December 1951, and brought into force on March 1952.

The constitution replaced the presidency by a national council of nine men, six drawn from the majority party, and three from the party polling the next largest number of votes, so that in effect the opposition was represented in the government. Elections were held every four years, and four majority members of the council presided over it in turn for a year each. The cabinet, consisting of nine ministers, was nominated by the council as a whole.

The council itself was watched over by a body curiously called "the Tribunal of Administrative Contentious Matters," which was appointed by the legislature, the two-chamber National Assembly, as a further check on executive abuses. The system furthermore was not confined to the national level, but operated in each of the 19 departments, analogous to counties, where the chief executive post of intendente was also abolished.

This elaborate machinery was not designed principally to preclude the possibility of dictatorship, of which Uruguay stands in less danger than any other South American country. Its principal purpose was to solve a peculiarly Uruguayan problem, posed by the fact that since the beginning of the century every single election had been won by the Colorados, one of the country's two major parties, the unfortunate losers being the Blancos.

The names of the parties (which mean Red and White) originated in the early 19th century, when Uruguay was in an endemic state of civil war, and the rival bands used colored favors to distinguish themselves.

The Colorados emerged as basically the urban party with a tendency towards the left, while the Blancos became the rural party, with a more conservative attitude. This orientation gave the Colorados a built-in advantage since, while Uruguay's economic base is rural — mostly sheep and cattle — her population is predominantly urban, one-third living in the capital, Montevideo.

To redress the balance, the Colorados in an unprecedented gesture of political generosity, introduced the constitution of 1952 allowing the opposition to tread the corridors of power. By a supreme irony, at the next elections the Blancos gained a majority for the first time in modern history, and the Colorados were the first beneficiaries of the system designed to benefit their opponents.

But the "collegiate" system, as it was known, proved less admirable in practice than it had promised to be in theory. The checks and balances went far beyond preventing the executive from exercising undue power — they virtually prevented it from doing anything at all.

In this national decision, the population chose by a comfortable majority to return to a presidential system. At the same time they voted — by a still unchanged and highly intricate system of proportional representation — to oust the Blancos and return the Colorados to power.

The third party, the left-wing FIDEL — its initials deliberately chosen to spell the first name of the Cuban prime minister — came a very poor third. Extremism of the left failed to take advantage of a promising situation. Extremism of the right did not even raise its head. So the first president under the new dispensation is a retired army man, General Oscar Cestivo. He is also a Colorado.

New Democrats on the Rise; What Are Their Objectives?

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College, York University. Mr. Fisher, a former NDP MP, lectures in Canadian government at Carleton University.)

What is the difference between the New Democrats and the Liberals? Why do some New Democratic leaders on the federal scene still talk as if they were in the 1930s?

On several recent occasions these two questions about the NDP have been put by the same person in conversation or have appeared in the same written statement. One might have thought that one question would preclude, or answer the other, but that apparently isn't the case.

The fortunes across Canada of the New Democrats are rising sharply. Opinion polls had put them level with the Conservatives even before the latter's unhappy and divisive Ottawa conference. More articles are appearing in the small city and weekly press on Mr. Douglas' party than ever before.

A widely syndicated Ottawa report appearing in late November refers to "the steady climb in public support recorded month by month by the NDP" and says this "makes that party a real threat to the old federal parties for the first time in our history." The columnist baldly claims, "Public support for the New Democratic Party is climbing steadily, as electors move away in disgust from both the accident-prone Liberal Party and the Conservative Party riven by internal strife."

It is not surprising therefore that more pieces are appearing in the press on New Democratic policy, more questions are being asked—even at times contradictory questions like the ones above.

All of this by way of introduction to a moderate but clear statement in the House of Commons last week by New Democratic leader T. C. Douglas on domestic economic objectives and tools. Mr. Douglas said:

1. He could think of no question which is of greater interest to all Canadians than the steadily rising cost of living and the spiraling of consumer prices. This has the most adverse effect upon those who live on fixed incomes, old age pensioners, superannuates, veterans, pensioners, people who live from rent on small properties and people who are not able, in a competitive market, to demand a larger income to compensate for the higher cost of living.

2. The Economic Council of Canada has pointed out that from 1957 to 1965 the wastage in Canada by our failure to use our full potential production cost the Canadian people $21 billion. That is an amount of $1,200 for every man, woman and child. That is $6,000 for a husband, wife and three children.

3. The New Democratic Party contends that the rising cost of living is due to two factors,

First, to the inequitable distribution of the national income, and second, to a misallocation of our human material and financial resources. It has become popular for some newspapers and some politicians to lay the entire blame on the fact that wages have increased. The argument goes this way: increased wages push up the cost of living, the increased cost of living means that workers want more wages, and therefore we are in a vicious circle. All the facts that can be adduced prove this contention is not true.

4. From 1960 to 1965 the labor cost per ton of steel in Canada dropped from $27.52 to $22.16, a decline of $5.36 per ton. In this period the profits of the steel industry went up 106 per cent. The Economic Council of Canada points out that the basic labor cost per unit of output in manufacturing in Canada fell by 11.3 per cent, between 1960 and 1965. It is difficult for anyone to argue that increased wages pushed up the cost of living.

5. There have been some attempts to blame the farmers for the increase in the cost of food, but what is significant is that although the prices of many of the food items have risen, the return to the farmers has actually gone down. In the 12-month period when bread went up 2 cents a loaf, the price of wheat dropped 17 cents a bushel. During the past summer when Canada Packers employees were on strike with the resulting glut on the hog market and the price of hogs on the Toronto market dropped by anywhere from $2 to $3 a hundredweight, the price of bacon went up by 15 cents a pound.

6. In the evidence of Mr. Bryce, Deputy Minister of Finance, in the second report of the consumer credit committee hearings there is a fascinating table. It shows that between 1949 and 1965 the share of our national income that went to wage and salary earners—whether white-collar, blue-collar, or executives—increased only 7.7 per cent, while the share which went to people who live off investment—whether in equity, bonds, mortgages or rents—went up 17.3 per cent. The share which went to the farming population increased only 1.7 per cent.

7. Mr. Louis Rasminsky, the governor of the Bank of Canada, recently said in a speech in Rome what the New Democrats have been trying to impress on the Minister of Finance for the past two years. Mr. Rasminsky pointed out that fiscal and monetary controls are no longer adequate to maintain stability in our economy and to provide a fair distribution of national income. The time has come for supplementary programs and policies, and there must be guidelines, imperative guidelines, to establish a fair and proper relationship between wages, prices and profits. There has to be a better distribution of the national income in Canada, on humanitarian and economic grounds.

Without question this is geared to the 1960s, but where is there an important Liberal who is talking this way?

WORKING MOTHERS

Experiment Begins
On Day Care Centre

By ELIZABETH FORBES

I've just heard some very exciting news about a project that's afoot in Spencer House. One that will eventually be of great benefit to many parents with children who need care while they work.

It revolves around a properly organized and supervised day-care plan that will start with babies and expand as the budget permits to include school-age youngsters.

Forbes

Mrs. Jane Gurr, child-care counsellor with Family and Children's Service, has been named to "get the project rolling." Derek Baker, assistant director with F and CS is in charge.

Both are enthusiastic about the possibilities of the plan. Both wish it firmly understood that it is not, in essence, a welfare program. It is planned as a community service for all working parents (and especially working mothers) with children who need day care.

"Working mothers are in the labor force to stay," Mrs. Gurr believes. "The need is to find a way to assist them to fulfill their duties both at home and in the labor field."

Until now Victoria parents have had very little help in placing their children in any sort of care.

Some have managed to find "the right spot" on their own but many have been forced to leave their young in environments that are far below accepted standards.

In the proposed program now being finalized, two types of day care are envisioned. The first, for babies and children up to six years, will be set up in carefully selected private homes where the mother likes children around her, knows how to manage them and is interested in giving them proper care.

The second would see small centres with perhaps 25 to 30 youngsters in each and with a qualified person in charge.

Here Mrs. Gurr points out that several city churches have offered to help with this phase of the project, by providing accommodation for such centres.

Organized and supervised day care for children in this city has been "simmering" for some time, she says. A committee was formed to study the matter more than 18 months ago. Organization work commenced last September.

First step will be to place babies — up to six years — in private homes. Then, as the budget permits, "we will branch out" into group centres.

Interview with the first person to volunteer for the work takes place this week. If she is accepted her home must be approved. Then arrangements must be made to have it licensed under the provincial government act.

So it is not likely that little ones will be placed in "her care" — or with anyone else who may be chosen — until the beginning of the new year.

Plans call for supervised care from eight in the morning until six at night, five days a week. Children will remain in their own homes on weekends.

There will be a sliding scale of fees and a small budget to help those parents who cannot afford to pay these fees.

"This is not a money-making proposition in any sense of the word," Mrs. Gurr points out. "Supervising mothers will be dedicated persons who wish, in this way, to give community service. They will put much more into the project than they ever get out."

Naturally Mrs. Gurr is looking for volunteers. At the same time she makes it quite clear that these volunteers must be women who believe that caring for children is a "rewarding experience" and who are willing to accept the rules and regulations of a well-organized, well-supervised day care plan.

This column has pointed out on several occasions that Victoria (and in fact, British Columbia) lags far behind in its concern for the problems of working parents and especially working mothers.

It has said, over and over again, that well-controlled, well-supervised day care for children is a way of giving help.

You can understand then that I'm as excited as anyone over the project that's afoot in Spencerhouse and that I wish those who envisioned it and who are working on it every success!

Branch to Develop
Beach at Parksville

A popular swimming beach three miles southeast of Parksville will be developed into a Class A park, it was indicated today.

A parks branch spokesman said installation of picnic tables and a change-house is planned for next summer at Rathrevor Beach.

The province obtained the second half of the 1½-mile long beach — noted for its relatively warm and shallow waters — last week in a swap with Tahsis Lumber Company.

An order-in-council authorized Tahsis to take off $230,000 worth of timber from about 400 to 500 acres of the Burman River ago.

Valley area in Straits Park in return for 158.2 acres of the beach property.

The province had acquired 115.8 acres at the north end of the beach in 1963.

A parks spokesman said ultimately, the beach park will be provided with camping facilities but initial plans call for establishment of "day use" facilities only.

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Indians have asked the Indian Affairs Branch to subsidize a pilot scheme to bring nursery school and kindergarten teaching to reserves.

The idea was one of the resolutions passed at the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada held a three-day meeting here Sunday.

Strikes in B.C. Boost Seattle

SEATTLE (AP)—Seattle rang up its biggest peacetime shipping boom through a combination of British Columbia's tied-up docks and an unusual amount of commercial and military cargo.

Forty-seven active ships were listed Friday on the Sound by the Seattle Marine Exchange.

Longshore gangs were unloading the cargo on an allocation system. First priority was urgent military cargo. Second priority was commercial cargo normally destined for this port and cargo originally destined for Canadian delivery was given third priority.

Some steamship lines were sending their vessels as far south as the Columbia River to discharge Canadian cargo.

One waterfront executive said there is no assurance when further longshore gangs may be available to unload Canadian cargoes.

'Productivity Must Pace Wage Gains'

TORONTO (CP)—Productivity in the railway industry must keep pace with wage gains if Canada is to have an economically viable rail system in the future, N. R. Crump, chairman of the CPR said Saturday.

Wages that rise faster than productivity must result in reduced profits, higher prices or greater government subsidies in any industry, Mr. Crump told the Toronto Railway Club.

The CPR spends more than half its revenue on wages or wage-related payments, he said. Improved productivity in the rail industry would not result in large-scale layoffs or artificial job maintenance as many people feared, rather, it would mean a stream of new employees, coupled with an upgrading of skills.

To achieve this management must be permitted to manage without overly restrictive labor agreements, labor must improve its skills and management and labor must be willing to meet in good faith, he said.

A text of Mr. Crump's speech was released in advance of delivery. Mr. Crump said railways will enter an era where they will be forced to fight their own battles once the National Transportation Act, now before a Commons committee, becomes law. This company welcomed the change, although decreased government payments would probably mean decreased CPR earnings for a time.

Mutual funds are a volume business, so a slight change in fees can amount to millions of dollars. The funds have pegged their fees high because they believe their professional advice and management are worth a good price.

Since the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission feels the funds' services are worth a bit less, some members of the industry are taking the exchange report as a serious threat.

Information, opinion, judgment, decision are some of the ingredients that contribute to the give and take that makes an auction market in any product. It is particularly true in the securities market.

The funds offer "professional" understanding of this mixture of fact and fancy. The assumption is that fund management is far more informed and able than the individual. And for this it takes a fee.

FEE SAID BIGGEST
The exchange says this fee averages out to a figure many times larger than that charged by banks for comparable services. It totals over a year's time about $130,000,000.

Two other studies in the last few years have reached similar conclusions that also pained the advice and management business.

First in 1962 the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania found that mutual funds in a certain period did no better for their customers, despite the fee, than mere chance could have done.

Last year the University of Chicago found that if you had chosen a stock at random in the 1926-1960 period the chances are that you would have made a profit 78.3 per cent of the time—merely by closing your eyes and choosing.

Naturally, the mutual fund industry disputes some of the university findings, just as it will dispute the exchange report. The exchange findings contain a bigger wallop, though, because they might be the basis for action by the U.S. Congress.

RIBICOFF ... less than 50 per cent

Car Recall Procedure 'Haphazard'

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate subcommittee reports that foreign auto makers attempted to recall 238,142 cars imported into the United States between 1960 and 1966 to correct safety-related defects.

But Senator Abraham Ribicoff (Dem.-Conn.), chairman of the subcommittee on executive reorganization, said Sunday night "the manufacturers and their dealers were able to reach, inspect and correct where necessary, 113,680 cars—or slightly less than 50 per cent."

Ribicoff added that because of procedures used "we have no confidence that all cars containing defects were the subject of recall campaigns."

At the same time, he added, not all of the cars recalled in the 127 campaigns were shown to have defects. He said 3,180-600 autos had been imported during the six-year period through last Aug. 31.

"This information supplied by the manufacturers would thus appear to indicate that only 7.5 per cent of the cars contained defects warranting a recall campaign," Ribicoff said, adding that "such a conclusion is not at all justified."

He noted that data supplied at the request of the subcommittee by the 21 foreign manufacturers was "by no means comprehensive" and said the recall procedures were haphazard.

Supersonic Aircraft Ordered

MONTREAL (CP)—Air Canada announced Saturday it has ordered 10 supersonic aircraft from Europe and the United States for delivery at varying periods between 1973 and 1977.

The government-owned airline said it has agreed with the manufacturer to purchase four Anglo-French Concorde aircraft to be delivered in 1973 and 1974.

A second agreement with the U.S. Federal Aviation Authority provides for delivery of six "SST" aircraft in 1977.

The Concorde is to be a 1,400-mile-an-hour aircraft built of conventional alloys, while the American SST, to be built of "exotic" metals, is designed to fly at nearly 2,000 miles an hour.

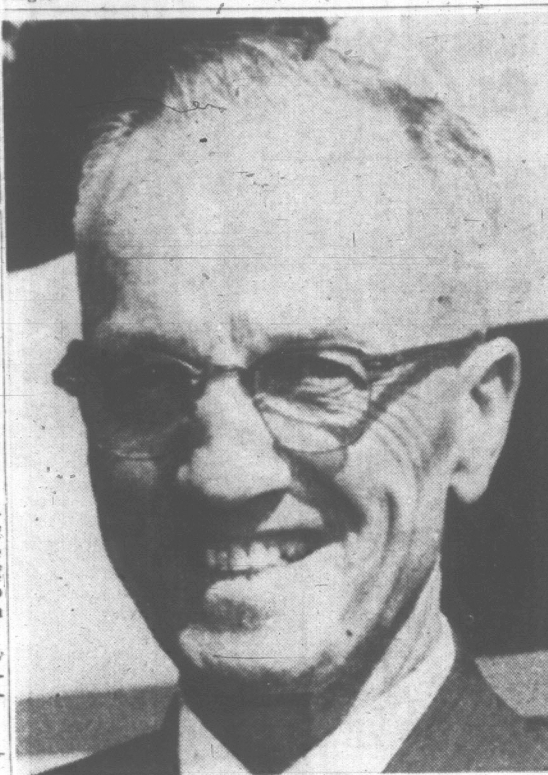

Air Canada said the new aircraft will be used on long-range domestic and international routes.

No cost figure was given.

Order From U.K.

SEATTLE (AP)—British Eagle International Airlines has ordered two 707-320C intercontinental jet transport planes from the Boeing Co. at a cost of about $7,300,000 each, it was reported today. Harold R. Bamberg, British Eagle chairman, has said the line hopes eventually to operate at least five of the big passenger-cargo jetliners.

Free Skating Display Helps Fraser to Title

Heather Fraser staged a superb free-skating display Sunday at Memorial Arena to capture the senior women's singles title in the British Columbia Coast figure skating championships.

It was a come-from-behind triumph for the 15-year-old Victoria star, who was in fourth place after completion of compulsory figures.

Ruth Hutchison of Kerrisdale, leading after skating her compulsory figures, finished in second place, ahead of New Westminster's Mary Ellen Kinsey.

Sunday's victory was the second for Miss Fraser in the two-day meet. She won the women's gold free skating crown Saturday in a duel with Barbara Wilson of North Vancouver's Capilano Winter Club.

David Cottam collected Victoria's only other victory in the meet. Cottam built up a solid lead in compulsory figures and skated to the novice men's singles.

Mainland skaters picked up the other crowns.

David Coffin took the senior men's singles with Victoria's Richard Madden finishing second and Jim Reid, Vancouver, in third place.

TWINS FAVORITES

The two-entry women's pairs event produced some outstanding skating. The Capilano duo of Betsy Whitman and Bonita Cave got the nod from judges in a close contest with the crowd favorites, New Westminster twins Gloria and Wendy Borthwick.

Mitchell Sparkles In Rugby

John Mitchell set the scoring pace Saturday as Brentwood College extended its season's unbeaten rugby record against teams from other independent schools.

Mitchell accounted for 14 points as Brentwood defeated St. Georges of Vancouver, 21-0 on the Brentwood pitch despite playing with only 14 men after Don Tansley suffered a head cut in the opening minute.

Mitchell scored four tries and kicked a conversion. Dean Sawyer collected one try and Dai Williams converted twice.

Brentwood also won three of five other rugby matches between the two schools. Brentwood's second side took a 9-5 victory, the colts won 9-0 and the junior colts won 24-0. Brentwood thirds lost 11-8 and the fourths were 16-3 losers.

University School lost three of five matches to Shawinigan Lake Boys' School in another rugby fiesta but won the feature game when the University first team downed the Lakers 18-3.

Richard Barker and Mo Gomez each scored two tries for University. Barker kicked two conversions and Jim Rounberry one.

University third took a 6-3 verdict and Shawinigan won the other three matches, the second winning 14-8, the colts romping to a 33-3 victory and the junior colts winning 27-3.

Pascual Back With Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Senators have acquired pitcher Camilo Pascual and second baseman Bernie Allen from Minnesota Twins for veteran relief pitcher Ron Kline.

Pascual, 32-year-old right-hander who won 20 games for the American League Twins in 1962 and 21 in 1963, slipped to an 8-6 record last season when he was out for two months with a sore arm. Kline, 34-year-old right-hander, had a 6-4 record with the Senators, also of the American League.

Allen, 27, batted .238 with the Twins last season.

Vancouver Olympics Post Impressive Time

Fun, sweat, more than 150,000 spectators and 68 miles were the ingredients.

Together they produced a lot of interest, a minimum amount of confusion and a remarkably fast time in Saturday's provincial centennial presentation of a road relay race from Nanaimo to Victoria.

"This was something different," commented Oregon State University coach Bernie Wagner after his team had finished second in the gruelling battle between eight teams of runners. "It was sort of a fun trip."

WELL ORGANIZED
Sweat was a common commodity as the runners loped various distances (from 2.3 to 5.6 miles) along the lengthy course, exchanging flashlights instead of batons as a safety measure.

Although some spectators appeared somewhat confused over the mechanics of the unusual race, the event was well organized and unfolded smoothly. There were no major problems. Nobody was misplaced, wandered off the course, became ill or got clipped by a car.

Members of the St. John Ambulance had only one chore. One runner stopped, called for aid, had an ankle taped and proceeded on his way.

IMPRESSIVE MARGIN
Getting the most from perspiration and perseverance were Vancouver Olympic Club runners, who finished in first place, eight minutes and 24 seconds ahead of Wagner's composite Oregon team.

The Olympics covered the 68-mile distance in the surprising time of five hours, 56 minutes, completely fooling experts who predicted the winners would require at least six hours and 30 minutes.

Closest duel of the day was the battle for third place, in which the Islanders started the final leg with a 60-yard lead over University of B.C.

Islanders had expected to have John Clark as their anchor man, but the provincial marathon champion and former Canadian cross-country king was delayed at work.

Youthful Craig Beveridge took over but was unable to match the driving strides of Bob Tapping, who got the UBC squad to the Naden gates finishing line 25 seconds ahead of the Islanders and 20 minutes behind Oregon.

CADETS SIXTH
Vancouver Optimist Striders were fifth, followed by Royal Roads, the Olympic Club "B" team and a youthful Richmond contingent.

With their oldest runner 41 and their youngest 16, Olympic Club trotters were in front from the early strides. Leading by four minutes after the fourth leg, they got a scare when a bus shuttling contestants from point to point ran late and Ron Davis almost missed the changeover for the 11th leg.

With Oregon State's top distance stars resting after a championship meet, Wagner assembled a capable team composed of athletes from Oregon colleges and high schools. Striders included some famous talent on their team, notably Olympic sprint champion Harry Jerome, who loped through a 2.3-mile stretch near Cobble Hill, and anchor-leg runner Vic Reeves, who helped set an Oregon University quartet world mile relay record in 1963.

Wary athletes were plentiful when Saturday's race ended, but almost all agreed it had been fun.

WINTER GAMES BERTH AWARDED TO MOLSONS

VANCOUVER—Completing a four-team, round-robin tournament without a loss, Vancouver Molsons senior women's basketball team Sunday earned the right to represent British Columbia in the Canadian Winter Games at Quebec City in February.

University of British Columbia finished second with two victories and one defeat. Mount Pleasant Legion was third and Victoria Rawlings were fourth.

Molsons defeated UBC 49-39 Saturday and both clubs followed up Sunday with wins over Rawlings and Mount Pleasant. Playing without injured Sylvia Campbell, Rawlings were downed 36-25 in a Saturday clash with Mount Pleasant. They were trailing by only two points when scoring ace Mary Coutts fouled out with 12 minutes remaining.

Equalization Grants Favored by Minister

Education Minister Leslie Peterson has declared himself in favor of equalization grants for university students from out of town.

He said the need for such grants is self evident. But he said British Columbia cannot afford to pay them.

Mr. Peterson this week told a student delegation that the grants will be paid only if the federal government agrees to share the cost.

He claimed that he spoke in favor of a cost-sharing arrangement at the recent federal-provincial conference on education financing.

University students are going to keep up pressure to get financial help for students who have to live away from home to attend university.

They intend to buttonhole MLAs during the next session of the legislature.

One member of the delegation said Mr. Peterson seemed nervous that students might hold another march to the legislature to dramatize their case.

EVERYONE BUT U.S. WANTS SMALL PLANE

Canada Gains From Fighter Sales

By ARCH MACKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States Air Force steadfastly refuses to buy the F-5 Freedom fighter, although it continues to fly a full squadron in Viet Nam and a classified number have been ordered for South Viet Nam.

But business is brisk elsewhere for the small, economy-priced twin jet. Canada, building 125 for the RCAF, is in line for some subcontracting, officials say, under the defence production sharing agreement with the U.S.

Canada sold the U.S. $260,000,000 worth of arms last year, an increase of $33,000,000 reflecting the boom created by the Vietnamese war.

So far, the U.S. military aid program has sent 300 of the F-5s — known as CF-5s in Canada — to such countries as Greece, Formosa, Iran and South Korea. Morocco has just unveiled models consigned to it by the military aid program.

Another 800 are on order, say officials of Northrup Corp., maker of the aircraft which has a fly-away price of $750,000, more with spare parts. They say Iran wants to buy more to augment those given to it as aid.

Norway, which like Canada bought the Freedom fighter, is said to want more, and Latin America, where reports of a swelling arms race among Argentina, Peru, Chile and Venezuela have caused concern, has been told the F-5 will be available to it by 1969.

The plane would compete there with second-hand French and British aircraft. West Germany has just sold Venezuela some second-hand Sabre jets, an outmoded U.S. plane.

Of particular interest perhaps for Canadian sharing in production is the proposal that The Netherlands has put to Belgium.

This would involve 225 F-5s to be assembled in The Netherlands if Belgium agrees to take some.

And if Belgium does, then it is hoped other European countries would expand the market by buying from the Dutch assembly line.

The U.S. Air Force has "borrowed" its squadron of F-5s from the military aid program but apparently intends to go on spending its money on more expensive aircraft in Viet Nam such as the F-4 Phantom, its hottest aircraft.

The F-4's cost is about $2,500,000 or about three times that of the F-5. One possible reason for air force policy is concern that by buying the F-5, its recommendations for acquiring more expensive aircraft might be beaten down.

In any case, it knows it can always have the F-5 anytime it wants.

Gracious Giving.

Shrub Forcing Practical

By HILDA BEASTALL

The forcing of shrubs indoors to bloom earlier than their natural season is not a common practice here on the coast, for we are blessed with both green and flowering plants outdoors during winter.

There are, however, times when some of the early spring flowering shrubs would make memorable additions to a special occasion.

It might be a home wedding or reception, or a first visit of family or friends from a distant point.

Flowering spring shrubs in large pots would be both attractive and intriguing but to warrant the work and expense of preparation, a conservatory type of room is almost a necessity.

Light, air and warmth are equally needed, and some experience in the length of time which must elapse before bloom can be expected.

While a list of probable shrubs can be given, a first hand knowledge of them will help in deciding which of them already have flower buds formed.

The buds need not be large and ready to open but they must at least be initiated, and with some plants it takes a practiced eye to spot the difference between round flower buds and the more pointed growth buds.

SHRUBS TO CONSIDER

A few shrubs to consider for this work are camellias, rhododendrons (especially the smaller early-blooming ones), lilacs, forsythias, and the two early flowering magnolias, M. stellata and M. soulangeana.

For a wedding we could use the early Spiraea thunbergii, the one with wands of tiny white flowers, and the bushy Prunus triloba with small double pink rose-like blooms.

The shrubs would require gradual acclimatizing after being put into their pots. A greenhouse at 55 degrees F. by day and 50 at night for a couple of weeks would be suitable, and fine tepid rainwater spraying for the deciduous plants would get them well started. A previous frosty period is a good starter too but often we must do without this assist.

WRITER:

Psychedelics Used 5,000 Years Ago

Psychedelic drugs are anything but new, a Vancouver freelance writer said in Victoria Saturday.

He said the controversial drugs have been used in many parts of the world as long as 5,000 years ago.

And while LSD is the best known psychedelic, a similar sort of experience can be obtained by chewing certain varieties of mushrooms, cactus and morning glory seeds. Ted Poole, the speaker at a psychedelic seminar at the Social Education Centre, said, "If you eat the nice red salvia flowers around the Legislative Buildings in Victoria you'll have a psychedelic experience."

Mr. Poole has written extensively on the "mind-expanding" drugs, particularly on the hallucinogen LSD.

SOCIETY AFRAID

He said society seems to be afraid of the hallucinogens and this is due to the "puritan tradition" of North America. Mr. Poole said the puritanism also shows itself in the way governments consider it necessary to control the sale of liquor.

The controversy over LSD is not surprising, he said. One hundred years ago the use of anesthesia was bitterly opposed and "even the Bible was quoted to show that people ought to suffer."

"It is the duty of authority — Parliament, the police, the church — to maintain the status quo. Anything new that comes along is a threat."

WITH A LITTLE PLANNING

Winter Layoffs Can End

Planning can overcome the traditional winter layoffs, the chairman of the Greater Victoria Winter Employment Committee said today.

Bank manager Ted Chamberlain announced that for the 13th year the committee is organizing a publicity campaign to make everyone aware of the continuing need for more winter work.

"Experience over the past few years shows that the old pattern of winter layoffs can be overcome when a community plans together to have done such an excellent job in providing winter work that the advertising for this winter will not start until January 11," he said.

Johnson Looks to Ottawa For an Election Issue

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The federal government, on a collision course with Quebec over old-age pensions, moved today to amend the Old-Age Security Act and provide for guaranteed income payments.

Ottawa is picking up the gauntlet thrown down by the French-Canadian province over the constitutional issue. Premier Daniel Johnson has warned that if the federal government proves "intransigent" he will go to the country.

The premier is obviously looking for a good issue on which to spring a snap election. Fighting the federal Liberals over the constitution is one of the best from the Union Nationale leader's point of view. It will hamstring the Quebec Liberals.

The federal government is determined to proceed with its guaranteed income plan for pensioners despite the move by Quebec last week to assume "sole responsibility" for old-age security.

The plan guarantees a total monthly income of at least $105 to everyone getting the $75-a-month federal pension with no extra income. Health and Welfare Minister MacEachen hopes to get the legislation passed in time to provide the increases by Jan. 1. But this appears to be an impossible target because of the amount of work involved in determining which pensioners will be eligible for the full additional payment of $30 a month.

Quebec's Union Nationale government promised in its throne speech last week to take over pension responsibility. Government sources in Quebec were quoted as stating that this was a test of the federal government's good faith in its statements that it wants to observe the constitution to the letter.

The federal government is unwilling to turn over tax revenues to Quebec to help the province finance its own pension plan.

"We propose to keep making payments directly to Canadian citizens," Finance Minister Sharp has said.

$200 MILLION

If the federal government turned over the pension field to the provincial government it would mean also the turning over of $200 million in tax resources to the Quebec government.

The old-age pension is one of the two major payments Ottawa makes directly to Canadians. The other is family allowances. Meantime, Quebec's Minister of Family and Social Welfare Jean-Paul Cloutier said Sunday in Quebec the federal proposals to increase old-age security pensions by $30 a month — with a means test — have forced Quebec to take over payment of the pensions.

He said the proposed "means" test was new in federal thinking. It constituted a move into the field of "guaranteed income" and welfare of this nature had to stay within Quebec's jurisdiction, he said.

Integration The Trend For Indians

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) —

Within 50 years most British Columbia Indians will have moved off the reserves and be almost completely integrated with the white man, says Cliff Roach, Indian superintendent for this area.

Mr. Roach says the growing trend among B.C. Indians is to integrate and "take their lumps and job opportunities on the same footing as the white man."

He says whites must change their attitude and accept the Indians' desire to progress or "our native people will lose all faith in themselves."

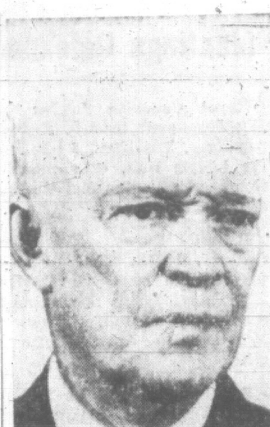

Mr. Roach is in charge of 2,500 Carrier Indians in the large Stuart Lake agency. He came here in May after four years at Alert Bay and two years in the North Okanagan Valley.

PROBLEMS GREATER

"The northern Indian is faced with greater problems of assimilation than his coast and Okanagan brethren," he said.

"The Indians up here have really only been in contact with the white man since the end of the war. Only about 50 per cent of them can read or write and for many the white man's ways are still very much of a novelty."

"B.C. Indians must change. One doesn't expect them to live like the Quakers or Pilgrims did when they first came to this continent and the Indians are in the same boat — they must adopt the white man's ways or disappear."

FORMER U.S. president Dwight Eisenhower, 76, will enter hospital in Gettysburg, Pa., for removal of his gall bladder. He will recuperate at Palm Desert, Calif.

WARM WELCOME AT FRENCH UNIVERSITY

Cheering Students Mob Kosygin

TOULOUSE, France (Reuters) — Hundreds of shouting, cheering students mobbed Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin today when he visited the science faculty of the University of Toulouse.

French and Russian security men were swept aside by the students in their eagerness for a close-up look at the Soviet leader.

He arrived here this morning from Paris on the first stop of a three-day visit to southern France. During his visit to Toulouse, he was scheduled to see the prototype of the Franco-British Concorde supersonic airliner.

Supersonic airliners are of special interest to the Russians, who are building their own version, the Tupolev-144, scheduled to make its inaugural flight in 1968.

Kosygin reacted good-humoredly to the warmth of the students' reception.

French Prime Minister Georges Pompidou, who will visit the Soviet Union early next year, was among the French officials at a flag-decked city-hall reception. Discussing Franco-Soviet relations, he repeated his statement in Paris last week that the Soviet Union seeks "detente and peace."

What's everybody in B.C. saying about this popular whisky?

Cheers. And you'll cheer too once you've tried Walker's Special Old. You'll like the mellow smoothness and the look of luxury. No wonder it's one of Canada's favourites.

"Sensible opening hours - that's one reason I switched to North West Trust... But there are others:"

- I used to get 3% interest on my savings. Now, I get 4% — which is half as much again. So my savings grow 50% faster.
- My current account pays interest, too. That same 4%. And because North West Trust gives free chequing privileges, it doesn't cost me anything to withdraw my own money.
- I can sit back and watch my money grow — on Term Savings especially. North West Trust interest rates on Guaranteed Investment Certificates are as high as 6%. And on Guaranteed Savings Certificates, intended for longer term deposits, your money achieves an average yearly growth of 7.5%. Your money's always there when you want it; redeemable on demand.

Why are so many people switching to North West Trust? Why not call in and discover the reasons for yourself. They're open from 8.30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 8.30 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Fridays.

'EQUALIZATION' CHEQUE SENT BENNETT BY PM

A $3 cheque from Prime Minister Pearson will be donated to the Salvation Army by Premier Bennett after it is photographed for posterity.

It was sent to pay off a Grey Cup game bet when the two men were seat-mates at the football game which saw Saskatchewan trounce Ottawa.

An accompanying note from the Prime Minister that he expected to win an "equalization payment" from Mr. Bennett next year was proof of a good sense of humor, the Premier said.

"It shows the good feelings there are between the different governments in Canada," said Mr. Bennett.

Centralize Power Manager Urges

Non-Elective Commissions Overlap, Confuse Public, City Hearing Told

Pleas for centralizing civic powers into the hands of elected councils, a simple majority for approval of fluoridation and elimination of all but residence qualifications for civic voters were made before a special hearing today.

Briefs by Victoria City Greater Victoria School Board and a private citizen were presented to a special committee touring the province to hear local reaction to proposed amendments to the Municipal Act approved by the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention this fall.

REVERSAL

The Victoria brief, delivered by city manager Dennis Young, asked for reversal of an historic trend of setting up independent or semi-autonomous boards and commissions to undertake specific civic functions.

No boards were named in the brief but it appeared to be aimed at such organizations as the Metro Health Board, Water Board and some aspects of the Regional Services Board.

"While it may well be true that limited objectives may be attained by delegating specific functions to semi-autonomous or independent boards or commissions, in the long run such a procedure tends to fracture municipal administrative organization," the brief said.

CONFUSES PUBLIC

"In addition, the proliferation of non-elective boards and commissions, often with overlapping areas of jurisdiction, confuses the public."

The city's brief suggested the city manager system enables municipalities to overcome previous disabilities in administrative machinery that prevented elected councils from spearheading solutions to emerging problems.

As a result, the elected councils now are capable of handling all the problems of growing urbanization but are hampered by jurisdictional divisions created in the statutes.

"It is respectfully suggested that every effort be made to focus administrative decision-making and policy determination in elected municipal bodies when amendments to the Municipal Act are being considered," the brief said.

ACT FASTER

"In so doing, and with statutory backing of this nature, local government will continue to enjoy the confidence of the voters and be able to act with dispatch in meeting emergency needs."

Mrs. A. B. Thompson, of the Greater Victoria School Board, presented a brief contending that fluoridation of water supplies has been proven as a preventive of dental disease but eight B.C. communities — including Oak Bay and Vancouver City — have been prevented from instituting it because plebiscites obtained more than 50 per cent but less than the required 60 per cent favor.

The brief urged amendment of the act to set 50 per cent as the required majority in a fluoridation plebiscite.

Lance Whittaker, an Oak Bay council candidate speaking as a private citizen, urged amendments:

Elimination of British subject status as a requirement to get on the civic voters list;

Election rather than appointment of police commissioners;

And power for all municipalities, not just cities, to confer the honor of "Freeman" on distinguished persons.

'Hot' Tap Means Spark Shower At Saanich Home

Instead of hot water, the hot taps in Mrs. Olga Streitz's home emitted a shower of sparks Saturday.

Firemen came and put out a small fire. It was their second visit that day to 361 Walter. Earlier, a short circuit in the domestic power lines caused a kitchen fire.

The firemen put it out and left, only to be brought back when another short affected the plumbing.

Strike-Idled Trio Admits Garage Thefts

Stolen Goods Found In Car by Policemen

Four Nanaimo youths, laid off work at the Harmac pulp mill because of the dock foreman's strike, appeared in central court today charged with breaking into a tire store.

A break-in occurred early this morning when thieves pried the door from a rear service door and ransacked Western O.K. Tire Store, 2968 Douglas, making off with a portable television set, three tires and a windbreaker jacket worth a total of $168.26.

William Maluish, 20, Richard Dunaway, 19, and Raymond Dunaway, 18, all of Nanaimo, pleaded guilty.

Another youth, Elwood Katona, 19, pleaded not guilty and a fifth youth will be tried in juvenile court.

The central court cases were remanded to Dec. 13 for Katona's trial and the sentencing of the three who pleaded guilty.

The five were in a car driven by the older Dunaway stopped by Saanich police at the intersection of the Trans-Canada and Burnside within half-an-hour of the break-in.

IN THE CAR

The missing articles were discovered in the car at the time. Other merchandise reported stolen—three more tires and an adding machine—has not yet been found. The guilty trio denied any knowledge of the rest of the missing merchandise.

Detective John Rickerby testified in court today the trio admitted Richard pried the door open and went in with Raymond Dunaway while Maluish stood guard outside.

The tire store has been the target of at least one other break-in in the past month.

FRIGID WATER off Dallas Road didn't stop scuba diver Ray Linden, 35, when residents reported sunken troller offshore. While Linden was searching for body of owner W. G. McAllen, he was safe at home. False alarm was blamed on a mixup. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

Nationalists Paint Crests Off Mailboxes

Apparently impatient with the slowness of the government in removing the coat-of-arms from mailboxes, vandals Sunday night took matters into their own hands and obliterated the crests with green paint.

The targets of their nationalist wrath were mailboxes at the corner of Douglas and Superior and the corner of Rupert and Heywood, and in the rear of the Legislative Buildings.

Police reported no suspects.

Manager's Death 'Great Blow'

James Archibald Gibbs, well-known to many Victorians as manager of the Yates Street store of Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped died suddenly at his home at 1360 Mitchell Street Sunday night.

He was convalescing from a recent illness and was expected to return to the store this morning.

Mr. Gibbs joined Goodwill Enterprises in 1959 and served as public relations officer until his appointment as store manager.

The tire store has been the target of at least one other break-in in the past month.

KIWANIAN
A keen gardener and model ship builder, he resided for many years in the Oak Bay area and was an active member of Oak Bay Kiwanis Club.

Born at Bristol, England, Mr. Gibbs came to Victoria as a child and attended North Ward and Burnside schools. As a youth he worked with the Imperial Munitions Board and in 1925 joined Palm Dairies. He reached the position of sales manager before his retirement in 1958.

'GREAT BLOW'
"The loss of Jimmy Gibbs is a great blow to Goodwill," George A. Gray, president and treasurer, said today.

"He was with us in the early days and much of our subsequent expansion can be credited to his selfless dedication to the service of handicapped people."

Mr. Gibbs is survived by the widow, Caroline, also associated with Goodwill Enterprises; a son, Michael Roy; a daughter, Mrs. Herbert Abbott; and a sister, Mrs. Dorothy Behnen, all of Victoria.

Funeral arrangements by McCall Brothers will be announced later.

Advance Poll Set Thursday, Friday

An advance poll in the Saanich elections will be held this Thursday and Friday in the municipal hall on Vernon Avenue.

The poll is open between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. for anyone signing a statement saying they expect to be outside the municipality on the regular Saturday voting day.

Fisherman at Home Eating Breakfast While Divers Search

While divers were searching for his body in the cold waters east of Clover Point today, fisherman William G. McAllen was home eating breakfast.

He survived a brief dunking when his 34-foot troller Rose Lorraine capsized and sank Sunday evening, but his rescue was not generally known.

He was being towed from Sidney to Victoria by another boat when a large log appeared between the two boats. His boat under tow was tipped on its side and filled with water.

The skipper of the other boat, so far unidentified, picked Mr. McAllen from the water. Mr. McAllen couldn't be contacted for details this morning, but Mrs. McAllen was reached at home at 3830 Saul in Saanich.

She said her husband had notified the pilotage of the accident at 8 p.m. Sunday. The pilotage however has no record of the report.

POLICE AT SCENE
As a result there was great consternation among waterfront watchers on Dallas Road early today. Three city police cars were on the scene soon after daylight.

They'd been called by residents who could see the tip of a boat's hull sticking out of the water. The police contacted the navy and a small crowd gathered.

The navy prepared to send divers but checked first with the

B.C. Pilotage. The pilotage reported that it had just then learned from the boat's owner that there was no loss of life. So the navy recalled its divers.

Meantime, Ray Linden, 35, a salvage diver who makes a living diving for octopuses for use as bait, arrived on Dallas Beach.

He went out to the wreck, about 200 yards offshore and determined that there was no one aboard. He was assisted by another private diver George Edgington.

BADLY BATTERED
Mr. Linden reported the boat was sitting on her stern and almost touching bottom. He couldn't see any holes in the hull, but said the boat was badly battered. The propeller was fouled with lines and a line was streaming in the current.

"It's been bashing around all night. The radio's gone, the sink's gone, the stove's gone. Everything's broken loose."

Salvage is up to the owner. Mrs. McAllen did not know whether there was sufficient insurance on the boat to protect against loss.

A strong southeasterly was making whitecaps on the straits this morning and stronger winds shook the area over the weekend, creating a hazard for small boats.

The U.S. Coast Guard was engaged in a search today in Rosario Strait, west of Anacortes for a 55-foot American tug, the Hornet. The tug and its two-man crew was feared lost.

The tug had been expected at Port Townsend at 7 p.m. to pick up a gravel barge. Last radio contact was made by the Coast Guard at 5:15 p.m. when she was four miles south of Burrows Island. The tug operates out of Port Ludlow.

Planned as 24-hour operation, the new station will have attractive cut-stone face and modern, low-style architecture. It will open about mid-March. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

'Start Saving' For Investment In Bank of B.C.

Premier Calls On Everybody To Take Part

Premier Bennett today said he and his family will become "sizeable" investors in the Bank of British Columbia and he urged all British Columbians to do the same.

"I'm going to put all my spare cash into the Bank of B.C. and I'm asking all the people of B.C. to start saving up now and start arranging their finances so they can be participants in the ownership of the bank too," he told a press conference.

The premier said this was his individual alternative because the federal government had vetoed direct provincial government participation in the bank.

'GREAT EXPANSION'

He said the new institution, which saw its charter approved by Parliament Friday, will bring about a "great expansion" in the province's economy.

"I'm more optimistic about B.C. development now than I ever was before," he said.

To express that optimism, he said he and his family would invest "many thousands" of dollars in the bank's stock which is expected to sell at $25 per share. "He would not say exactly how much his investment would total."

'WITH FAVOR'

Nor would he say whether the government's present $100 million deposits in all chartered banks would be consolidated in a single deposit in the new bank.

"I'm not saying what government policy will be except that the government of B.C. looks with favor on the new bank."

"But there is still going to be lots of room for the other chartered banks in this province because the expansion that will come as a result of this bank will mean more business for everyone."

Building Pace Nudges Closer To '65 Figures

Construction activity in Greater Victoria is edging closer to comparative figures for last year.

Measured by the dollar value of building permits, construction worth $30.4 million has been authorized in the first 11 months of this year.

The 11-month figures break down to $13.1 million in Saanich, $13 million in Victoria, $2.2 million in Esquimalt and $1.9 million in Oak Bay.

For the same period last year, the breakdown was: Victoria, $17.6 million; Saanich, $11.2 million; Oak Bay, $3.8 million; and Esquimalt, $1.1 million.

In November, permits worth $1.9 million were issued in Victoria; $1.2 million in Saanich; $38,888 in Oak Bay and $22,100 in Esquimalt.

Swearing In New Cabinet Set Monday

Two more harbingers of the approaching legislative session were released by Premier Bennett this morning.

He announced that Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver-Centre) and Dr. H. R. McDiarmid (SC—Alberni) would be mover and seconder, respectively, of the reply to the speech from the throne.

Both freshmen MLAs who gained entry to the government's back-benchers in the Sept. 12 election, they will make Jan. 25, the day following the legislature's 100th anniversary opening ceremony in New Westminster.

Mr. Bennett also said there will be a swearing-in ceremony at Government House Monday for new cabinet ministers.

He said these will include a health minister and Isabel Dawson (SC—MacKenzie), Pat Jordan (SC—North Okanagan) and Grace McCarthy (SC—Vancouver-Little Mountain) as ministers without portfolio.

He declined to reveal identity of the man he has picked to replace retiring Health Minister Eric Martin or to say whether there would be any more ministerial appointments.

Witnesses Dedicate Controversial Hall

A two-year battle with Victoria city council ended Saturday night with the dedication of a new Kingdom Hall at 1095 Joan Crescent by the Jehovah's Witnesses of Greater Victoria.

Two applications to build on the property were refused by council despite recommendations in favor of the Witnesses by the city advisory planning commission.

A third application in 1964 was granted on the advice of city solicitor T. P. O'Grady and city manager Dennis Young.

They held that further refusal would be "clear discrimination" against the Witnesses.

VOLUNTEER LABOR
The new Kingdom Hall at Joan Crescent was built largely by volunteer labor at a cost of about $20,000. It was officially dedicated Saturday by Victor Osborn, presiding minister of the Fairfield congregation, in the presence of more than 200 Witnesses.

"We dedicate this building to the pure worship of Jehovah God," he said.

Clifford Roberts of the central congregation of Victoria recalled that the first assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses was established here in 1913 with only 25 members.

700 WITNESSES
"Today more than 700 Witnesses are active in Greater Victoria," he said.

Fred Johnston of the Fairfield congregation praised Toronto lawyer Glen How, QC, who spearheaded the Witnesses' third application to city council.

He said Mr. How had given distinguished service to the sect

Shelf Plan Alarm Clock For Canada

Premier Bennett today said the government's reserve on the continental shelf was in the same category as B.C.'s famous submarine fleet.

"He said both actions were needed "to wake up the government of Canada."

The premier told reporters he rejected Prime Minister Pearson's remonstrance that a province could not change its boundaries.

"We're not extending it. If (the continental shelf) always has been our boundary," he said.

"We're just putting a reserve on it to stop squatters sneaking in."

He was asked how the province proposed to detect under-sea squatters.

"We have our navy," he replied—then burst out laughing "Canada's," in anticipation of the next question.

"B.C. had to wake up Canada before too," he continued, recalling the incident when Premier Sir Richard McBride bought three submarines in British Columbia's name at the outset of the First World War because the Canadian Navy had no units here to protect the west coast.

Swastikas Painted On Sidewalk

Vandals painted swastikas on the sidewalk, damaged a public washroom again and left their mark in Ross Bay Cemetery once more over the weekend.

Police today blamed drinking youths for part of the destruction. Officers called to the 1100 block Oscar Saturday found two swastikas in white paint splashed on the sidewalk. Eggs had been thrown against windows of one house. A chain store shopping cart was also found at the scene.

A St. Charles Street resident later reported seeing two men entering Ross Bay Cemetery the previous night.

Police found beer bottles in the cemetery and some flowers had been trampled on.

Mail Overseas Gifts—
It's Almost Too Late

By Penny Saver

Penny's done it again! Flipping through the pages of my calendar, I've just made the fantastic discovery that all overseas parcels are due at the post office this week! There are still gifts that I must find for a few relatives that I had mentally put aside because I thought I had lots of time. A moment ago, I thought of all the wrapping and parceling that I'd have to do to send these parcels away (packages which I haven't even found yet), but my neighbor just rushed in with the news that there's an item that comes in its own mailing package.

This is really a double-barrel item. It's a tea towel made of fine imported linen that's the perfect gift idea; as well as the ideal Centennial gift. The towel is a hand-printed map of British Columbia in bright, color-fast tones. In the top right-hand corner there is a replica of the British Columbia flag.

Emblems for the Canadian and the British Columbia centenary also appear on the towel. The map itself is very detailed and shows many special points of interest in our province. Vancouver Island shows Butchart Gardens and the Malahat. Small towns in the interior, such as Barkerville, have their specific highlights printed beneath them.

These colorful tea towels make perfect wall hangings for rumpled room or den. Fold about one-half inch of the fabric on top and bottom and sew it down securely. Insert a rod in the loops, and attach a cord to the top rod. Hang it anywhere.

Use them as tea towels for special occasions. Their price is $1.25 per towel.

For mailing purposes, these come in manilla envelopes that are printed with addressing lines to make this job simple for you.

Pick up your Centennial maps today. Give Penny a call at 382-3131 if you want to know where she found them.

SEW SIMPLE

Dear Mrs. Farmer: I have some new wool and bought it because of the interesting texture and color. Now a friend tells me I would be using the wrong side of the wool. Would it be wrong to use it this way?

Mrs. R. L. L.

Dear Mrs. R. L. L.: No, it wouldn't be wrong, if the wool has a finished look on both sides. Often the joining of threads is more pronounced on the wrong side, but I do know for sure that designers often use the wrong side for the effect. For the ones of you who have asked me, the right side of wool is always on the inside fold.

I must tell you about something so different and attractive that I know you'll love. The last time I was in New York, I visited a very sophisticated office and was enchanted with the darling, dainty little flowers on my friend's desk. She told me that she had made them just for me and asked me if I knew how they were made. Imagine my surprise when she told me they were made of thread and only took minutes to make.

Because of her generosity, we now have a new leaflet to offer you, just in time for Christmas. It's a booklet of bazaar items, dress trappings, and the best part about it is that it's completely new (and who doesn't love to be first). Just send a small, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Eunice Farmer, in care of this paper. We will send you a free copy of the "Thread Flower Story." Drop everything and send for yours today; even your children can make them at home, or in Scout or craft classes.

DEAR ABBY

The Meeting
Of the Minds

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Joe and I have gone together for three years and we are very much in love. We will both graduate from college in June and we want to get married. Our problem is my father. You see, he is a Baptist preacher, and Joe's father runs a beer parlor, but he is a respectable, law-abiding citizen just the same. To make matters worse, Joe and his family go to another church. What are we going to do, Abby? I am afraid if I tell my father I want to marry Joe he will have a fit.

LOVES JOE.

DEAR ABBY: If Joe's father is a respectable, law-abiding citizen, no one need apologize for the way he makes his living. And your father, who makes his living by preaching kindness, compassion, and respect for one's fellow man, should surely practice it. As long as your father doesn't expect Joe's father to pray in his church, and Joe's father doesn't expect your father to drink in his beer parlor, you should have no problem.

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "Practical" could have been written by me a few years ago. I also have a wonderful, generous husband who insisted on buying me expensive gifts for every occasion. He had a friend who owned the town's leading jewelry store, so whenever my husband wanted to buy me something he would go to his friend, who always had just the right item for me.

Being practical, I hated to see my husband spend the money on frivolities, so one day I went to the jewelry store and told the owner, "One more piece of jewelry and I am going to bring it back!"

He said, "Don't you dare. I have a customer whose wife did that, and now he's buying jewelry for another woman!"

After that, I kept everything my husband bought for me.

NOT SO DUMB.

DEAR NOT: Neither was the jeweller. It's not hard to figure out how he became the town's leading jeweller.

DEAR ABBY: How could you do this to us? After trying so hard to "graciously" decline dinner invitations at the homes of my pupils, you come out and say it's all right for teachers to accept such invitations. Abby, if I were to accept one, the other 37 would pounce on me, and it would mean one continuous round of winning and dining. And the evening is nothing but a parent-teacher conference with the kids thrown in.

Putting the finishing touches on the decorations to star at guests' tables at the Victoria Musical Art Society's carol tea, Saturday afternoon, are Mrs. W. Harrison (left) and Mrs. Peter Lovric. The program begins at 2:45 p.m. in the Empress Hotel ballroom and will feature Christmas hymns and carols by Mrs. Gladys Pearcey's "Wee Folk" choir.

Everything From Old Fairy Tale Was There Except Three Princes

"Serendipity," loosely speaking, is the ability to find valuable things in unexpected places. An old fairy tale tells of the three princes of Serendip who were reputed to be able to find valuable things by chance no matter where they were.

There may not have been any princes attending St. Aidan's United Church Women's "Serendipity" bazaar, Saturday, but those who were there found all sorts of wonderful and unexpected bargains at the event. A total of $1,535 was realized.

It was an afternoon of fun for the youngsters who attended as the church's Young People's group organized a "fun house," which featured not only 10 different games but a dunking machine and movies.

One of the most popular stalls for the younger set was the hot dog stand, where Mrs. C. Hayward and her committee dispensed hundreds of the juicy treats.

The lure of wrapped parcels tempted more than one youngster at the Christmas tree surprise booth, managed by Miss Judith Champion. Here, a Christmas tree was gaily decorated with "baubles" of packages in every size, with more packages piled up beneath.

The "older generation" had just as much fun—catching up on Christmas shopping at the novelty, sewing and doll clothing booths, or picking up food treats at the home baking and delicatessen stalls.

As soon as Saanich councillor Mrs. A. Gunning pronounced the bazaar open, guests surged to the luncheon area where Mrs.

G. Fields and Mrs. J. Wallace and their committee served a delicious turkey-burger dinner. Before too long, old Tom Turkey and all his trimmings had disappeared!

Three hours and three refills after the bazaar had opened, the home baking stall, which Mrs. C. Dempster and the Ida Griffiths Unit convened, was reduced to a few cookies and crumbs.

The best salesmen at the affair had to be the AOTS men's group, led by P. Boorman, who cornered shoppers to buy everything from potted plants to Christmas nuts. Next were the church's Cubs and Scouts, who sold advance orders for Christmas trees and parcel labels.

Attractive table centrepieces made of dried grasses and plants could be found at the novelty stall, managed by Mrs. W. Hunter and the Margaret Irving group. The Canadian Girls' in Training, headed by Mrs. T. Horne, also sold novelties, suitable for Christmas giving and decorations.

In charge of other stalls were: Delicatessen, Mrs. R. Watson and Nellie McClung Unit; sewing and knitting, Mrs. C. J. Kirby and Irene Dawson Unit; hats and jewelry, Mrs. A. S. Bednar and Mary Jennings Unit; candy, Mrs. N. McDermid and Stella Armitage Unit; white elephant, Mrs. N. Walsh and Explorers. Mrs. S. J. Sharpe and Miss Avery Unit supervised the tea.

Of special note were the decorations, arranged by Mrs. D. Smutin and Mrs. H. Lyons. The church hall featured streamers of grey, blue and green, with unique mobiles made of luring paste-stiffened string "baubles." Tea tables were centred with grey-sprayed bolly leaves and green and blue-sprayed berries. Mrs. Lyons also handled the publicity.

General conveners were president Mrs. Duncan Smith and Mrs. Rupert J. Champion.

The Victoria Jaycee-ettes honored one of its charter members when it recently met at the Colonial Inn. In memory of the late Mrs. Norman Copley, who had been one of the group's original members, the organization set up a fund for $200 which will be used to send deserving children to summer camp. WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Every Woman May Now Quickly

LIFT HER FACE OUT OF WINTER LINES, WRINKLES and Aging DRYNESS

... thanks to the "Wiesbaden Discovery" CEF-600

Helps Every Complexion Regain and Retain The Younger Look by Immediately Counteracting Effects of Winter's Icy Grip

No matter if your skin is typed dry, normal or even oily... no matter whether you enjoy being outdoors or prefer indoor protection... both frigid arctic air and overheated dry rooms dehydrate, drain skin of water and deprive it of the necessary moisture that pushes skin up and out to keep it as smooth, firm and wrinkle-free as the day you were married. And now, during the social season, when you particularly want to look your youngest best, "old man winter" works overtime to dry out and make your skin on face and neck flabby, sagging, rough, chapped and weatherbeaten. You look and feel years older than your age. And your husband... it makes him feel older too!

Your Chance for a Quicker Winter Youth

Medical journals have acclaimed the "Wiesbaden Discovery" known scientifically as CEF-600 and now embodied as the active ingredient in the cosmetic-like lotion named "2ND DEBUT." Apply "2ND DEBUT" nightly before retiring and daily before make-up. Day and night, it is constantly carrying water into the skin... counteracting all the skin drying effects of outside cold and inside overheating that chaps, dries, wrinkles your skin and makes it sag.

How 2ND DEBUT Works Quickly

Once again skin is moisturized, fresh, dewy radiant. Once again those aging lines and wrinkles are pushed up and out. Once again skin on face and throat is smoother and years younger in appearance. No matter how weather-beaten your complexion may be, a youth-like color glows from within. Your complexion seems to have been born beautiful. Only 2ND DEBUT can bring about this fantastic skin youthifying miracle... in spite of winter's drying action!

For Extra Dry Skin—Or Mi-Lacy In A Hurry—2ND DEBUT With Double Strength CEF 1200

New DOUBLE STRENGTH 2ND DEBUT contains CEF 1200 instead of CEF 600. It acts much faster to smooth and flatten skin made scaly by winter's icy grip... and it works quicker to push up and out the more deeply seated lines and wrinkles.

Satisfaction Or Money Back Is Guaranteed

We are likely to think that in a land of such prosperity and luxurious food production, everyone is well nourished.

Lowman States and other countries which have such a varied and comparatively inexpensive food supply, this is not unusual.

George L. Mehren, assistant secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture said not long ago, "The fact is that only 50 to 60 per cent of American households have diets that fully meet the standards set of adequate nutrition by the National Research Council. Among our low-income population an estimated 70 to 75 have diets that are deficient in one or more respects."

Many studies and surveys have indicated that this is true. Nutritionists seem to agree that one of the main culprits in the habit of skipping breakfast. It has been estimated that 40 per cent skip this meal, except for a quick cup of coffee. Many more just add a doughnut or a sweet roll.

Studies at the University of Iowa and the Army Quartermaster Corps have indicated that long periods of time without food, such as from bedtime until noon the next day, have definite unhappy effects. Keep thinking and muscular ability are both impaired.

Then too, it is difficult to get all of the essential nutrients in two meals, unless they are huge ones and carefully planned. Breakfast supplies you with some of the most important items, and items which you are apt to miss otherwise. For instance, orange juice is usually a breakfast drink, and few who skip this meal see to it that they have a glass of this at some other time in the day. Whole grain products such as cereals should be a part of every diet.

If you are skipping breakfast because you are dieting to lose weight, you are very unwise. You will experience fatigue and breakfast brings you lots of health value for a comparatively few number of calories.

An egg has only 75 calories. A cup of orange juice has 110 calories, three-fourths cup of oatmeal 100 calories, a slice of whole wheat toast 75 calories, 8 ounces of skim milk or four ounces of whole milk (on your cereal) have only 80 calories. You are probably drinking your coffee black anyway, or using one of the artificial sweeteners, if you are reducing.

Of course, the way you prepare your food is important calorie-wise. Boil or bake your egg and use only a small dab of butter or margarine. Butter your toast lightly and do not add jam or jelly. Use skim milk or a small portion of whole milk on your cereal, and so forth.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvine Dawson, 680 Victoria Avenue, announce the forthcoming marriage of their second daughter, Margaret Louise, to Mr. James Thomas Taylor, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Taylor, of Brentwood. The wedding will take place on Saturday, December 17, at 8 p.m., in Oak Bay United Church. Rev. Alexander Calder will officiate. The bride-elect is a 1966 graduate of the Royal Jubilee Hospital school of nursing. (Miss Dawson's photo by Leonard Holmes; her fiancé's by Kandik Kamera Studio.)

For Cownden-Dodsworth Marriage

GRECIAN-INSPIRED GOWN

An exquisite Grecian-inspired gown of champagne dogwood brocade was worn by Frances Doreen Dodsworth when she became the bride of Dennis Adrian Cownden recently. The simply-styled gown, made by her mother, was floor-length and, slightly en train. It featured a bateau neckline and belled sleeves to the elbow. As "something borrowed" she wore her mother's diamond pendant, and she carried a bouquet of red roses and white carnations. A trio of fabric roses, circled with satin leaves, held her hand-rolled veil of eggshell silk.

Arrangements of autumn flowers were at the altar of the three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table at the reception following in St. Mary's Parish Hall. A. R. C. Wildig proposed the toast to the bride.

The couple will be making their home at 1542 Yale Street, following a honeymoon trip up Island. For travelling, the new Mrs. Cownden donned a two-piece Italian-knit suit of turquoise, topped with a white mohair coat. Brown accessories and a white orchid corsage completed the outfit.

Travelling from out-of-town for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cownden Jr. of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. George Freeman and family of Cowichan; Mr. and Mrs. R. Holly and family of Nanaimo, and Mrs. T. Bingham, Portland, Ore.

Mystery Party—Eighty-two friends enjoyed an unusual type of party, Saturday evening, when they set out on buses from the Mayfair Shopping Centre on a mystery party. The only ones who knew what was in store that evening were the party organizers. Nobody complained about the results, however. The first stop was at the Sooke Harbor House, where the party enjoyed a smorgasbord dinner and an evening of dancing to the Midnight Ramblers. On returning to Victoria, a windup to the party was held in the Greenridge Crescent home of Mr. and Mrs. John Carr. Seen in the background of this picture are Mr. and Mrs. Del Guest, white in the front row, left to right, are Mr. Don Butler, Miss Claire Haddock, Mr. and Mrs. J. VANCOUVER VOWS

A wedding of wide interest in Victoria took place in the Canadian Memorial United Church, Vancouver, recently when Joan Elizabeth Taylor became the bride of Robert Marpole Stokes. Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. Taylor of Vancouver and Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Stokes, 2789 Musgrave Street, Victoria.

Many out-of-town guests attended from Victoria, Courtenay, Comox, Parksville, Prince George and Seattle.

Rev. W. Stuart MacLeod officiated at the evening ceremony. White chrysanthemums, white candles and candelabra decorated the church. Soloist was R. Loney.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a gown of white peau d'ange, enhanced with Alencon lace appliques, shimmering with embroidery of seed pearls on the bodice, sleeves and skirt. A full train extended from the empire waistline. Lace appliques accented the illusion net veil that misted from a headpiece of silk organza roses. Her cascade bouquet was formed of white roses and stephanotis.

Gowns of moss green velvet, styled on empire lines, in floor length and trimmed with a back floating panel were the choice of matron of honor, Mrs. J. Phillip Humphries; bridesmaid, Mrs. Phillip P. Olsen, and bridesmaid, Miss Heather Lavey. They wore toning headpieces of velvet roses and veiling and carried bronze chrysanthemum bouquets.

Richard Sparks of Victoria was best man and ushering guests were Richard Stokes, Victoria, and Douglas Taylor, brothers of the principals.

D. C. Munro proposed the toast to the bride's happiness at the reception which followed in the Hycroft University Women's Club. The reception rooms were bright with arrangements of white, yellow and bronze chrysanthemums.

As her going-away outfit, the bride chose a coat and dress ensemble of red wool, toning hat and white rose corsage.

Gift Giving Problem Is Solved

The Christmas bazaar and tea at Gorge Road Hospital Auxiliary certainly solved many gift problems for many people, Thursday.

Christmas shoppers by the hundred crowded into the hospital, all eager to snap up the holiday decorations and presents which were featured after all, Christmas is less than a month away.

First stop for "Santa's helpers" was the toy booth, where Mrs. A. Peddesden, Mrs. E. Ash and Mrs. J. Cook sold every type of stuffed animal imaginable, from stocking bears to bright-faced woolly octopi. Other hand-made items which became best-sellers at this table were dainty little pixie dolls in nylon net and satin costumes, which any little girl would love to find under the Christmas tree.

Articles to make the holiday decor even brighter were featured at a table offering Christmas decorations and gifts. Packets of six Christmas napkins, fashioned with a holiday motif, were sold by Mrs. A. Mawer, Mrs. T. G. Dalzell and Mrs. Z. Lewis, as well as Christmas coasters, and table centre-pieces.

Suggestions for "stocking stuffers" included foam-covered hangers, bookmarks, fabric-covered catch-all baskets and cheery wall hangings.

Children's clothing as well as a huge variety of aprons were found at the apron table, which Mrs. V. Mawer, Mrs. F. Harvey and Mrs. A. L. Campbell supervised. Here were exquisite skirt-covers in dainty fabrics, just right for the holiday hostess.

The fashion-conscious couldn't bypass the hat counter where Mrs. C. E. Coleman sold chapeaux for every season. Nor could they miss the jewelry stall, where Mrs. G. Callan and Mrs. J. McGraw had arranged displays of all types of earrings, pins and necklaces to tempt shoppers.

Both the candy booth, convened by Mrs. G. Shattock and Mrs. Anne Hartley, and the home-cooking stall, managed by Mrs. F. Christian, Mrs. G. F. Hilliard and Mrs. R. B. Simms, were looking decidedly bare, soon after the bazaar got underway. All the home-baked treats, which included Christmas goodies, too, were soon bought by thrifty housewives.

No one can resist a surprise so Mrs. H. V. O'Reilly was really kept hopping supplying shoppers with mysterious parcels at the Lucky Seven booth. The white elephant stall, managed by Mrs. G. McKeown and Mrs. B. Wiper kept the conveners "on the go," too, as bargain-hunting buyers browsed through and bought the articles at their stall.

The raffles were doing a roaring business as well, as conveners Mrs. G. Leeming, Mrs. W. McGregor, Mrs. R. G. Aitken and Mrs. S. Smethurst

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

With Christmas only 30 days away, we are beginning to become deluged with shows with the yuletide theme.

The lighting of the Christmas Tree ceremony from Rockefeller Centre in New York City will be carried live and in color on CBC-TV, Friday, Dec. 9.

The tree, for the first time in the 34-year history of the ceremony, there will be a definite Canadian flavor.

Stephen

The tree will come from outside the U.S., a white spruce from the Petawawa Forest Preserve in the upper Ottawa Valley and a centennial gift from the people of Canada.

Canadian figure skaters Otto and Maria Jelinek, 1962 pairs champions, and 14-year-old Canadian Gold Medal champion Karen Magnusen of Vancouver, will perform on the Rockefeller Centre skating rink. From Montreal will come The Little Singers, of Mount Royal, a 37-voice boys' choir associated with Montreal's St. Joseph's Oratory.

The 64-foot tree will be taken to New York by truck. An RCMP escort will hand it over to the New York State police at the Thousand Islands Bridge border-crossing point. Canada's centennial commissioner, John Fisher, will present the tree.

The day before Christmas, a special half-hour program produced at CFRN-TV, Edmonton, will ret. B.C. exposure on Channels 6 and 8.

Members of St. Paul's Anglican Church Sunday School in Edmonton will re-create the Biblical story of the Nativity in a half-hour program.

"The Christmas Story" follows Joseph and Mary on their journey from Nazareth to Jerusalem, where Mary gives birth to the Christ-child.

The entire cast is made up of young people ranging in age from six weeks to 20 years. The play has been a regular Christmas presentation at St. Paul's for the past 15 years of the church's 65-year history. For this occasion, the 21-member cast plus the St. Paul's choir will re-enact their pageant for this special television program.

The CBC will preview 30 centennial projects across the country in a one-hour telecast December 8.

"Centennial Overture" will look at an outdoor stage shaped like a lobster trap at Shediac, N.B., an Arctic museum in the Yukon, the Wolf Creek Jubilee Court at Wolsley, Sask., the new Centennial Arts Centre in St. John's, Nfld., preparations for the 1967 Banff Indian Days celebrations in Alberta and a replica of a B.C. stage coach.

NEW OIL WELL FOUND IN EGYPTIAN DESERT

CAIRO (Reuters)—The Oklahoma-based Phillips Petroleum Co. has found oil in Egypt's western desert, the first successful drilling in the area, its manager, R. C. Beck, said today.

Beck, speaking by telephone from Alexandria, said it would take some 30 days of testing to discover whether enough oil was present to make it commercial.

"We have high hopes it will be commercial," he said.

Earlier, the authoritative Al Ahran newspaper said the first well was found 12 miles south of El Alamein. Its annual output was estimated at between 70,000 and 75,000 tons.

Courts to Decide Ownership of Land

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Rancher's wife Margaret Leonard said Friday she has been told by Indian Affairs Minister Arthur Laing that the courts must settle a land dispute between her and the British Columbia Highways Department.

Mrs. Leonard claims ownership of 160 acres of land on the Kamloops Indian Reserve fronting the South Thompson River, part of which is needed for a highway project.

The highways department paid an undisclosed sum to the Kamloops Indian Band for the land, but Mrs. Leonard claims prior ownership through inheritance.

She said she has tried for four years to get the federal government to produce any document that would nullify hers. A few months ago, with work already starting on bridge footings across the river, Mrs. Leonard padlocked a gate to the disputed land and warned highway crews they would be charged with trespassing if they entered.

This prompted a meeting in which the highways department, the band council, Mrs. Leonard and the Indian Affairs Branch. As a result, she says, the money for the land was placed in escrow pending an ownership decision from Mr. Laing.

Mrs. Leonard said she was happy with this decision, but added: "The gate will remain padlocked until I actually see that letter."

Council to Double Budget For Humanities, Sciences

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Canada Council is having its budget almost doubled with the primary aim of encouraging research in the humanities and social sciences.

Secretary of State Judy LaMarsh announced the increases Friday.

Parliament will be asked to vote $17,000,000 for the Canada Council next year and more in "This should enable the council to make a new and even stronger contribution both to knowledge of our social problems and to the development of our national cultural life," said Miss LaMarsh.

Budget of the council this year is about $11,000,000, all of it spent in research grants and about $4,200,000 on support of the arts and the rest on special programs and administration.

Next year, according to Jean Boucher, the council's director, the council will receive $17,000,000 from the government and again add $4,000,000 of its own revenues giving it a total budget of $21 million.

The emphasis in Miss LaMarsh's statement was on encouraging research. She said, "Canada faces major problems of an economic, political and sociological nature which can be met only through adequate research — and this research must be done here in Canada."

Zoning Changes To Be Aired

A public hearing on the proposed zoning plans for the unorganized district of Langford, Colwood and Metcheson will be held in Belmont High School on Dec. 19.

Some businessmen are critical of the delay in putting the plan in effect. It has been under discussion since last spring.

Robert Fleming, who owns a truck sales business in Langford, claimed some have suffered hardships because building permits are being held up until the zoning plan is approved.

IMPAIRED DRIVERS

Fined for impaired driving when they appeared in central court Friday.

Robert Nye, 25, of 416 Springfield, fined $500 and barred from driving for three years after he weaved down the wrong lane of the Johnson Street bridge Nov. 6. His driving record was termed "anything but impressive."

Michael Sophonow, 219 Ganges, fined $350 and prohibited from driving after his car collided with another auto on Bay Street Dec. 1.

MACAO CURFEW BRIEFLY LIFTED

Lull in Bloody Riots?

MACAO (Reuters) — Portuguese authorities today briefly lifted a curfew clamped on this tiny enclave in South China after two days of bloody street clashes between leftist Chinese and security forces in which unofficial reports said seven persons were killed.

The curfew was lifted from 8 a.m. to noon local time in order to let residents do essential shopping.

Thirty-five persons were unofficially reported severely injured in rioting which started with protests by Chinese residents against alleged police brutality. The authorities have not yet released official figures.

The authorities appealed to parents not to send children to school this morning and to keep them indoors.

Sunday rioters, screaming "kill the Portuguese devils," ransacked government property and uprooted traffic signs.

Eyewitnesses said Macao's equivalent of Red Guards, carrying red booklets of quotations from Chinese Communist leader Mao Tse-tung, attacked press photographers and chased Europeans off the streets. Main thoroughfares were littered with broken furniture, glass and other debris.

Radio Macao today repeatedly appealed to both Chinese and Portuguese residents to do nothing to disturb the peace.

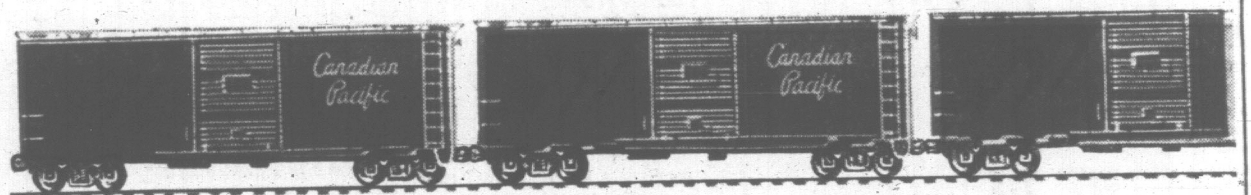

Earlier the newly-appointed governor of Macao, Brig. Nobre de Carvalho, issued a proclamation saying that for the good of both communities he was personally attending to five demands by the leftists to settle an incident on Taipa Island which sparked the unrest.

SHIPPING ACT

Quick Dump
Boats Sought

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Boating Federation voted at its 17th annual convention Saturday to ask the federal government to extend the Canada Shipping Act to cover pleasure craft.

The yachtsmen want federal protection from water pollution regulations published in August by the Ontario Water Resources Commission. The regulations forbid the disposal overboard of any waste, organic or inorganic, from pleasure craft in Ontario waters.

Many pleasure craft carry overboard disposal systems for human waste. Some have sewage treatment devices built in, but the new regulations forbid these.

The OWRC wants boat owners to hold the wastes aboard, to be pumped out at docksides.

Commercial vessels don't have the same problem because they are regulated by the Canada Shipping Act, which allows overboard disposal of human waste once it has been treated.

WANT SIMILAR LAW

CBF members also decided to petition the province to adopt the standards laid down in the federal act.

A new racing division was formed for pleasure boats.

The new division will recognize 24 classes of inboard and outboard motor boats for racing. All are factory models or standard designs with stock motors.

Points gained in CBF pleasure boat racing will be recorded and will count towards a national championship.

Fifteen races are planned in Ontario and Quebec in 1967 including an international marathon across Lake Ontario.

Postmen Eye
Next Round
Of Bargaining

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Canada's postmen are discontented and ready to go to battle again over the "humble settlement" they received last month in wage negotiations, union representatives said Sunday.

More than 50 strike committee members from Windsor, Ont., to Hamilton and Owen Sound met in London to thrash out areas of discontent over their Nov. 15 contract with the federal government and plan future action.

The contract negotiated on Nov. 15 is for a 10-month period and gives the letter carriers a 25-cent-per-hour wage increase. They had sought $1-per-hour increase.

Eighty per cent of the union's membership had voted to strike if contract negotiations failed.

Alex Power, of Toronto, first vice-president of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, told the representatives the contract settlement is "humble, but it established a precedent. We may not have won much money but we won collective bargaining."

MEMBERS UNHAPPY

Charles Maguire, of Hamilton, district representative of the LCUC, said Sunday's meeting was "called because of the absolute discontent among the members with the settlement." The union is planning to begin bargaining again about April for a new contract.

Strike committee members were warned the next round of negotiations will be crucial.

"This contract," Mr. Maguire said, "is going to have to be examined carefully. We must not take anything which will be detrimental in future contracts."

Employers Turn Down Compromise Formula

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Maritime Employers' Association has rejected a compromise formula to end a tie-up of ports in the province.

Edward M. Strang, association president, said today there will be no reconsideration of the compromise proposed Sunday by Labor Minister Nicholson.

Under the compromise about 200 dock foremen on strike for employer recognition would get grievance procedure and the right to form a unit without joining the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

The foremen, now members of Local 514 of the ILWU, approved the formula at a meeting Sunday night.

A spokesman for the foremen said after the meeting that Mr. Nicholson's proposals "when signed by the employers, will return foremen to work immediately."

Mr. Nicholson commented at the time that "it's gratifying that one side thinks an early return to work is desirable."

CRITICIZES FORMULA
Mr. Strang branded the formula a "device" and a "very primitive form of collective agreement."

He said the association "made it plain Sunday morning we would reject it—we told the labor minister well in advance what our attitude would be."

Mr. Nicholson was not immediately available for comment on the latest development in the dispute that has crippled cargo movement out of ports, resulted in a record backlog of ships.

'Accept Formula Forthwith'

Premier Bennett today made an urgent appeal to employers to accept a federal formula for settlement of the B.C. dock tie-up.

He complimented federal Labor Minister John Nicholson for proposing the formula and said he appreciated the foremen's decision to accept it.

"I call on management now, in the best interests of British Columbia, to accept the formula forthwith," Mr. Bennett added.

"It may not be the settlement they wanted, but I ask them to accept it forthwith. Immediately following the premier's plea, the employers went in to an emergency meeting to discuss the matter.

The formula proposed that foremen have the rights of grievance procedure and of association to process such disputes.

A management representative indicated it would be rejected because it could lead to inclusion of the foremen in a union.

The Premier said the dispute was entirely within federal jurisdiction but was so important to the nation that he did not wish to appear to be sitting on the fence by concealing his feelings.

Mr. Bennett said the dock tie-up affects not only B.C. but the prairies and other parts of Canada.

Britain Moves To Invoke World Boycott

(Times News Services)

Britain moved tonight to invoke world-wide trade sanctions against Rhodesia after Premier Ian Smith's refusal to call off the breakaway colony's rebellion.

Smith told a crowd waiting outside his Salisbury office at 8 p.m.: "The fight goes on."

The terms for eventual rule by Rhodesia's black majority had been worked out in a conference between British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Smith in a weekend conference aboard the cruiser HMS Tiger in the Mediterranean.

Wilson gave Smith until noon today to accept the terms.

Smith said he accepted Wilson's proposed constitution but he is not willing to accept Wilson's terms for ending the Rhodesian rebellion and a return to what he called legality. These terms apparently included giving power to the British-appointed governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, over the police and armed forces and the power to appoint ministers.

The Wilson terms also included a demand that five members of the Rhodesian government should come from outside Smith's ruling Rhodesian white-minority front party and that number must include two Negroes.

Wilson was expected to spell out later tonight British intentions in a report to the House of Commons.

The British already have taken first steps towards reference of the dispute to the United Nations Security Council.

The draft resolution on sanctions is understood to call for United Nations order banning trade in major Rhodesian exports, but without the threat of force or a blockade. It makes no mention of oil, a vital Rhodesian import. Some of the African representatives on the sanctions committee are demanding that oil be included.

South Africa has already stated it would not abide by any order cutting off trade with Rhodesia.

Wilson had warned Smith he wanted only a "straight yes or no answer."

Smith asked for more time to consider and Britain granted a brief respite so the Rhodesian cabinet could meet in emergency session.

Then Rhodesia announced it would not accept the terms.

Smith made it clear he was willing to accept constitutional proposals which fulfilled Britain's six basic principles as a basis for a constitution for an independent Rhodesia. These principles included guaranteed progress towards Negro majority rule.

He qualified his statement, however, saying Premier Wilson's latest proposal under the heading of a return to legality are repugnant to the Rhodesian

'Keep Hands Off Hanoi'

HONG KONG (APF)—The South Viet Nam National Front for Liberation (Viet Cong) radio today warned the United States against "further laying hands" on Hanoi.

The radio, quoted by the North Viet Nam news agency, said the blasting of the United States Psychological Warfare headquarters in Saigon and the mortar shelling of the huge Tan Son Nhut air base by Viet Cong forces were "reprisals to U.S. air bombing of various" populous areas on the outskirts of Hanoi.

Describing the raids on Hanoi as "an extremely grave escalation" of the war by the United States, the radio said that the Viet Cong would "hit them ten to a hundred times harder" should they continue to "lay their hands" on Hanoi.

Boy in Camper Dies at Scene

A 15-year-old boy and a mother of three children died Sunday night as a result of a shattering rear-end collision on the Pat Bay Highway at Elk Lake.

Dead are Christopher Berryman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Berryman of 5174 Santa Clara, and Mrs. Pauline Wilk of 1278 Denman.

Three of the four other people involved in the accident are in good condition in hospital.

Saanich police said the accident occurred at about 6:20 p.m. at the intersection of the highway and Piedmont Drive.

A southbound pickup truck with low-roof camper unit had stopped to make a left turn on to Piedmont when a car crashed into the rear of it. A passenger in each of the vehicles was fatally injured.

Driver of the light truck was Maurice Neal, 42, of 9170 Inverness in North Saanich, who was taking two of his son Brian's friends home after a day's outing at the Neal residence.

THREE IN REAR
The three 15-year-olds, Brian, the Berryman boy and Dennis Trill of 5045 Wesley, were in the rear of the truck under the camper roof.

Officers identified the driver of the other car as George Wilk, 52, of 1278 Denman. His wife, Pauline, was a front-seat passenger.

Mrs. F. R. Minter of 5126 Patricia Bay Highway said the crash, "like an explosion," sent the rest of her family rushing out to the accident while she phoned the alarm. There was a near-collision at the same intersection Sunday morning, she said.

There are two southbound lanes and one for traffic north at the point of the crash. Mrs. Minter described as "terribly dangerous."

Mr. Neal said today he was knocked unconscious by the crash.

Hiking Chums Killed

By TERRY IZZARD

A former Victoria boy and his city school chum were killed Sunday night hitchhiking home after visiting relatives.

The two were just south of Union Bay on the Trans-Canada Highway when a car smashed into them, killing both instantly.

Police identified one of the youths as Keith Peters, 15, of 431 4th Street, Nanaimo.

Parents of the other 15-year-old boy were on their way from Victoria at press time to identify him.

According to police, the two chums were returning from Campbell River when the accident occurred.

It was 5:30 p.m. and already dark.

A northbound car, driven by Norman Farmere, 39, of Courtenay, pulled out to overtake another vehicle and plowed head-on into the boys.

When RCMP officers arrived, the boys were already dead in a nearby roadside ditch.

Keith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Peters, said their son had been to visit his parents in Victoria Saturday. On Sunday they hitchhiked from Victoria to visit relatives in Campbell River.

Policemen Kill Fleeing Gunman

VANCOUVER (CP)—A young man was shot to death by police following a running gun battle through Vancouver streets early today.

Police converged on the Smilin' Buddha about 2 a.m., shortly after receiving a telephone report that a man armed with a revolver had fired several shots inside the east end nightclub.

Police arrived as the man was coming out the door and he fired upon them. They returned the fire, but the man dashed down the street and led police on a chase through streets and alleys.

The chase ended at Powell and Main Streets in the Skid Road area where the man fired several more shots, striking several police cars. No policemen were injured.

Police again returned the fire, this time hitting the man in the chest and between the eyes. He died on the spot.

Police identified the victim as Hughie Wayne Francis, 27. A police spokesman said the man was well known to them.

The name of the constable who fired the fatal bullet was withheld.

Police said it was a "miracle" no policemen were hit by bullets.

SHE LEARNED TO SMILE THREE POUNDS LATER

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

In Calcutta, India, earlier this year, a four-year-old girl was brought to a health centre weighing 10 pounds.

She wasn't an average Indian child; there are quite a few others like her, so Unitarian Service Committee workers at the centre weren't shocked.

They merely set to work to offset the effects of starvation and make the child healthy.

They gave her the best care the centre's limited facilities could afford, fed her frequently, and hoped she would pull through.

And she did. When USC

Director Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova saw the child a short time later on her tour of USC Asian relief projects, the little girl weighed 13 pounds.

She could move her eyes to watch her nurses as they moved around the room, although she was still too weak to move her head.

By this time she was also strong enough to smile. And smile she did—at her mother, at Dr. Hitschmanova, at the nurses and the doctor at the USC centre and at the world in general for having given her a chance for a life of happiness.

Most of all if she had been able she would have smiled at the thousands of generous Canadians who make USC aid to Indian children possible through funds such as the Times' Share with Asian Children Fund.

When Dr. Hitschmanova last saw her the little girl was still at the USC dispensary, gaining weight, smiling and moving around more every day.

HAPPY ENDING

Her case will have a happy ending, but not so many hundreds of similar cases, where food and medical aid from the USC or other relief organizations is not available.

USC aid to these pitiful cases of starving and neglected youngsters is directly dependent on contributions from more fortunate Canadians.

SURVIVED 11 DAYS ON SNOW-COVERED MOUNTAIN

Battered Couple Crawl to Safety

By BURL OSBORNE

COLVILLE, Wash. (AP)—A car stuck in the snow led to the rescue of a Canadian couple who survived 11 days after their plane crashed on a northeastern Washington peak.

Roy Brown, 35, of Saskatoon and his wife, Betty, 32, were reported in good condition today at Mount Carmel Hospital here.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown, the parents of six children, had been the object of a wide search in Canada and northeastern Washington since their single engine plane vanished Nov. 24.

They were flying to Vancouver to join relatives at the Grey Cup game Nov. 26.

There was no sign of them until late Sunday afternoon when Ron Ruble of Colville heard a cry for help as he was trying to dig his car out of the snow.

Ruble looked up and saw Mrs. Brown floundering through waist-deep snow.

"Wait for us," she cried. "Our plane crashed."

"We'll wait," said Ruble.

"We're stuck."

Mrs. Brown helped free the car, saying, "I'll use this shoulder; it's the other one that feels like it's broken."

A few minutes later her husband, who had been following her down a logging road, reached the highway. Ruble, who had got stuck while taking his wife and 18-month-old son on a sightseeing ride, drove the Browns to Colville.

Doctors at hospital said they did not believe the Browns had any broken bones.

Brown said he had headed south across the Washington border after running into a heavy fog bank over Canada.

They headed toward a clear spot near Sherman Pass. Mr. Brown thought the plane would not be able to clear Copper Butte, so he banked the plane to the left (south). The aircraft stalled and crashed into the hillside about 200 feet from the top.

Mr. Brown received facial injuries and was unable to see for four days. During the six days they stayed at the site of the accident, they heard and saw aircraft flying overhead, but were unable to draw their attention.

Mrs. Brown climbed to the top of the mountain and spotted the flashing yellow light of a highway department truck on the highway below. They built a fire, hoping a motorist would see it and assist them, but again were unsuccessful in attracting attention.

During their stay at the crash site they slept in the cockpit of the aircraft.

On the seventh day, in waste-

deep snow, they walked out. Mr. Brown used two pieces of wood for crutches, and Mrs. Brown helped him to walk. It took them four days to walk an estimated eight miles.

The Browns stopped each evening about 4 p.m., built fires, and ate beans and peanut butter.

At 3:30 p.m. Sunday they

Joy-Filled Faces Decorate Brown Home

SASKATOON (CP)—The joy-

filled faces of their six children decorated the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown Sunday a few hours after the children learned their parents had been rescued.

"I talked to mom on the telephone," said Lynn, 13, the eldest child. "The first thing I did was ask how dad was. Mom said he was fine except for some cuts and bruises."

Another daughter, 12-year-old Diane, said her mother reported her father was fine "but he was in a wheelchair."

"I guess I'll have to help dad learn how to get around on crutches for a while."

Mutual Fund Fees Attacked

NEW YORK (AP)—Attacked by the United States government for charging "excessive" fees, certain members of the mutual fund industry are going to react like fat cats that have just been swatted.

PACT SIGNED WITH CHINA

PARIS (AFP)—The French Berliet Truck Company will supply 600 trucks worth $16,000,000 to China under a contract signed here today.

China will pay cash down for the trucks which are 13-to 15-ton types for delivery between next February and April 1968.

'Productivity Must Pace Wage Gains

TORONTO (CP)—Productivity in the railway industry must keep pace with wage gains if Canada is to have an economically viable rail system in the future, N. R. Crump, chairman of the CPR said Saturday.

Wages that rise faster than productivity must result in reduced profits, higher prices or greater government subsidies in any industry, Mr. Crump told the Toronto Railway Club.

The CPR spends more than half its revenue on wages or wage-related payments, he said.

Improved productivity in the rail industry would not result in large-scale layoffs or artificial job-maintenance as many people feared, rather, it would mean a stream of new employees, coupled with an upgrading of skills.

To achieve this management must be permitted to manage without overly restrictive labor agreements, labor must improve its skills and management and labor must be willing to meet in good faith, he said.

A text of Mr. Crump's speech was released in advance of delivery.

Mr. Crump said railways will enter an era where they will be forced to fight their own battles once the National Transportation Act, now before a Commons committee, becomes law.

His company welcomed the change, although decreased government payments would probably mean decreased CPR earnings for a time.

Mutual funds are a volume business, so a slight change in fees can amount to millions of dollars. The funds have pegged their fees high because they believe their professional advice and management are worth a good price.

Since the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission feels the funds' services are worth a bit less, some members of the industry are taking the exchange report as a serious threat.

Information, opinion, judgment, decision are some of the ingredients that contribute to the give and take that makes an auction market in any product. It is particularly true in the securities market.

The funds offer "professional" understanding of this mixture of fact and fancy. The assumption is that fund management is far more informed and able than the individual. And for this it takes a fee.

FEE SAID BIGGEST The exchange says this fee averages out to a figure many times larger than that charged by banks for comparable services. It totals over a year's time about $130,000,000.

Two other studies in the last few years have reached similar conclusions that also pained the advice and management business.

First in 1962 the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania found that mutual funds in a certain period did no better for their customers, despite the fee, than mere chance could have done.

Last year the University of Chicago found that if you had chosen a stock at random in the 1926-1960 period the chances are that you would have made a profit 78.3 per cent of the time—merely by closing your eyes and choosing.

Naturally, the mutual fund industry disputes some of the university findings, just as it will dispute the exchange report. The exchange findings contain a bigger wallop, though, because they might be the basis for action by the U.S. Congress.

RIBICOFF ... less than 50 per cent

Car Recall Procedure 'Haphazard'

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate subcommittee reports that foreign auto makers attempted to recall 238,142 cars imported into the United States between 1960 and 1966 to correct safety-related defects.

But Senator Abraham Ribicoff (Dem.-Conn.), chairman of the subcommittee on executive reorganization, said Sunday night "the manufacturers and their dealers were able to reach, inspect and correct where necessary, 113,660 cars—or slightly less than 50 per cent."

Ribicoff added that because of procedures used "we have no confidence that all cars containing defects were the subject of recall campaigns."

At the same time, he added, not all of the cars recalled in the 127 campaigns were shown to have defects. He said 3,180,000 autos had been imported during the six-year period through last Aug. 31.

"This information supplied by the manufacturers would thus appear to indicate that only 7.5 per cent of the cars contained defects warranting a recall campaign," Ribicoff said, adding that "such a conclusion is not at all justified."

He noted that data supplied at the request of the subcommittee by the 21 foreign manufacturers was "by no means comprehensive" and said the recall procedures were haphazard.

Supersonic Aircraft Ordered

MONTREAL (CP)—Air Canada announced Saturday it has ordered 10 supersonic aircraft from Europe and the United States for delivery at varying periods between 1973 and 1977.

The government-owned airline said it has agreed with the manufacturer to purchase four Anglo-French Concorde aircraft to be delivered in 1973 and 1974.

A second agreement with the U.S. Federal Aviation Authority provides for delivery of six "SST" aircraft in 1977.

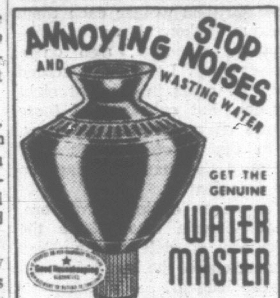

The Concorde is to be a 1,400-mile-an-hour aircraft built of conventional alloys, while the American SST, to be built of "exotic" metals, is designed to fly at nearly 2,000 miles an hour.

Air Canada said the new aircraft will be used on long-range domestic and international routes.

No cost figure was given.

Order From U.K.

SEATTLE (AP)—British Eagle International Airlines has ordered two 707-320C intercontinental jet transport planes from the Boeing Co. at a cost of about $7,300,000 each, it was reported today. Harold R. Bamberg, British Eagle chairman, has said the line hopes eventually to operate at least five of the big passenger-cargo jetliners.

Strikes in B.C. Boost Seattle

SEATTLE (AP)—Seattle rang up its biggest peacetime shipping boom through a combination of British Columbia's tied-up docks and an unusual amount of commercial and military cargo.

Forty-seven active ships were listed Friday on the Sound, by the Seattle Marine Exchange.

Longshore gangs were unloading the cargo on an allocation system. First priority was urgent military cargo. Second priority was commercial cargo normally destined for this port and cargo originally destined for Canadian delivery was given third priority.

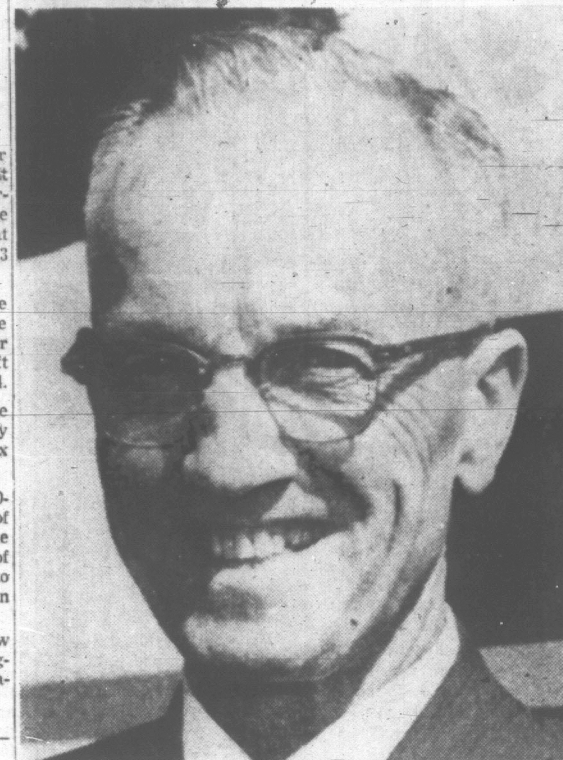

Some steamship lines were sending their vessels as far south as the Columbia River to discharge Canadian cargo.

One waterfront executive said there is no assurance when further longshore gangs may be available to unload, Canadian cargos.

'EQUALIZATION' CHEQUE SENT BENNETT BY PM

A $5 cheque from Prime Minister Pearson will be donated to the Salvation Army by Premier Bennett after it is photographed for posterity.

It was sent to pay off a Grey Cup game bet when the two men were seat-mates at the football game which saw Saskatchewan trounce Ottawa.

An accompanying note from the Prime Minister that he expected to win an "equalization payment" from Mr. Bennett next year was proof of a good sense of humor, the Premier said.

"It shows the good feelings there are between the different governments in Canada," said Mr. Bennett.

Centralize Power Manager Urges

Non-Elective Commissions Overlap, Confuse Public, City Hearing Told

Pleas for centralizing civic powers into the hands of elected councils, a simple majority for approval of fluoridation and elimination of all but residence qualifications for civic voters were made before a special hearing today.

Briefs by Victoria City, Greater Victoria School Board and a private citizen were presented to a special committee touring the province to hear local reaction to proposed amendments to the Municipal Act approved by the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention this fall.

REVERSAL

The Victoria brief, delivered by city manager Dennis Young, asked for reversal of an historic trend of setting up independent or semi-autonomous boards and commissions to undertake specific civic functions.

No boards were named in the brief but it appeared to be aimed at such organizations as the Metro Health Board, Water Board and some aspects of the Regional Services Board.

"While it may well be true that limited objectives may be attained by delegating specific functions to semi-autonomous or independent boards or commissions, in the long run such a procedure tends to fracture municipal administrative organization," the brief said.

CONFUSES PUBLIC

"In addition, the proliferation of non-elective boards and commissions, often with overlapping areas of jurisdiction, confuses the public."

The city's brief suggested the city manager system enables municipalities to overcome previous disabilities in administrative machinery that prevented elected councils from spearheading solutions to emerging problems.

As a result, the elected councils now are capable of handling all the problems of growing urbanization but are hampered by jurisdictional divisions created in the statutes.

"It is respectfully suggested that every effort be made to focus administrative decision-making and policy determination in elected municipal bodies when amendments to the Municipal Act are being considered," the brief said.

ACT FASTER

"In so doing, and with statutory backing of this nature, local government will continue to enjoy the confidence of the voters and be able to act with dispatch in meeting emergent needs."

Mrs. A. B. Thompson, of the Greater Victoria School Board, presented a brief contending that fluoridation of water supplies has been proven as a preventive of dental disease but eight B.C. communities — including Oak Bay and Vancouver City — have been prevented from instituting it because plebiscites obtained more than 50 per cent but less than the required 60 per cent favor.

The brief urged amendment of the act to set 50 per cent as the required majority in a fluoridation plebiscite.

Lance Whitaker, an Oak Bay council candidate speaking as a private citizen, urged amendment:

Elimination of British subject status as a requirement to get on the civic voters list; Election rather than appointment of police commissioners; And power for all municipalities, not just cities, to confer the honor of "Freeman" on distinguished persons.

'Hot' Tap Means Spark Shower At Saanich Home

Instead of hot water, the hot taps in Mrs. Olga Streitz's home emitted a shower of sparks Saturday.

Firemen came and put out a small fire. It was their second visit that day to 361 Walter. Earlier, a short circuit in the domestic power lines caused a kitchen fire.

The firemen put it out and left, only to be brought back when another short affected the plumbing.

Stolen Goods Found In Car by Policemen

Four Nanaimo youths, laid off work at the Harmac pulp mill because of the dock foreman's strike, appeared in central court today charged with breaking into a tire store.

A break-in occurred early this morning when thieves pried the door open and ransacked Western O.K. Tire Store, 2908 Douglas, making off with a portable television set, three tires and a windbreaker jacket worth a total of $168.26.

William Maluish, 20, Richard Dunaway, 19, and Raymond Dunaway, 18, all of Nanaimo, pleaded guilty.

Another youth, Elwood Katona, 19, pleaded not guilty and a fifth youth will be tried in juvenile court.

The central court cases were remanded to Dec. 13 for Katona's trial and the sentencing of the three who pleaded guilty.

The five were in a car driven by the older Dunaway stopped by Saanich police at the intersection of the Trans-Canada and Burnside within half-an-hour of the break-in.

IN THE CAR

The missing articles were discovered in the car at the time. Other merchandise reported stolen—three more tires and an adding machine—has not yet been found. The guilty trio denied any knowledge of the rest of the missing merchandise.

Detective John Rickerby testified in court today the trio admitted Richard pried the door open and went in with Raymond Dunaway while Maluish stood guard outside.

The tire store has been the target of at least one other break-in in the past month.

Nationalists Paint Crests Off Mailboxes

Apparently impatient with the slowness of the government in removing the coat-of-arms from mailboxes, vandals Sunday night took matters into their own hands and obliterated the crests with green paint.

The targets of their nationalism were mailboxes at the corner of Douglas and Superior and the corner of Rupert and Heywood, and in the rear of the Legislative Building.

Police reported no suspects.

Manager's Death 'Great Blow'

James Archibald Gibbs, well-known to many Victorians as manager of the Yates Street store of Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped died suddenly at his home at 1360 Mitchell Street Sunday night.

He was convalescing from a recent illness and was expected to return to the store this morning.

Mr. Gibbs joined Goodwill Enterprises in 1959 and served as public relations officer until his appointment as store manager.

A keen gardener and model ship builder, he resided for many years in the Oak Bay area and was an active member of Oak Bay Kiwanis Club.

Fisherman at Home Eating Breakfast While Divers Search

While divers were searching for his body in the cold waters east of Clover Point today, fisherman William G. McAllen was home eating breakfast.

He survived a brief dunking when his 34-foot troller Rose Lorraine capsized and sank Sunday evening, but his rescue was not known.

He was being towed from Sidney to Victoria by another boat when a large log appeared between the two boats. His boat under tow was tipped on its side and filled with water.

The skipper of the other boat, so far unidentified, picked Mr. McAllen from the water. Mr. McAllen couldn't be contacted for details this morning, but Mrs. McAllen was reached at home at 3830 Saul in Saanich.

She said her husband had notified the pilotage of the accident at 8 p.m. Sunday. The pilotage however has no record of the report.

As a result there was great consternation among waterfront watchers on Dallas Road early today. Three city police cars were on the scene soon after daylight.

They'd been called by residents who could see the tip of a boat's hull sticking out of the water. The police contacted the navy and a small crowd gathered.

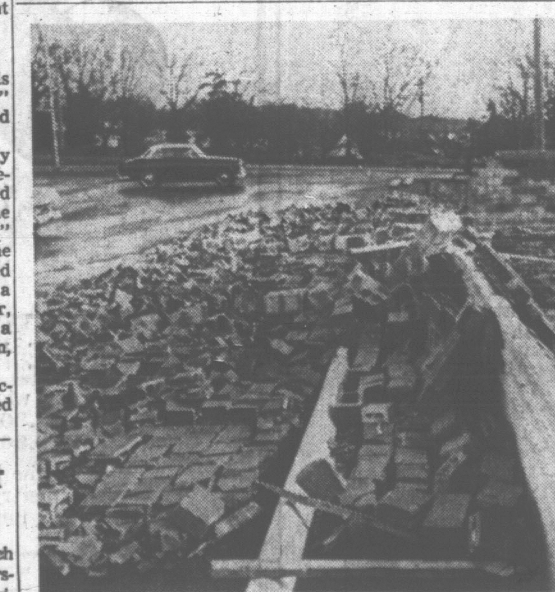

The navy prepared to send divers but checked first with the

'Start Saving' For Investment In Bank of B.C.

Premier Calls On Everybody To Take Part

Premier Bennett today said he and his family will become "sizeable" investors in the Bank of British Columbia and he urged all British Columbians to do the same.

"I'm going to put all my spare cash into the Bank of B.C. and I'm asking all the people of B.C. to start saving up now and start arranging their finances so they can be participants in the ownership of the bank too," he told a press conference.

The premier said this was his individual alternative because the federal government had vetoed direct provincial government participation in the bank.

'GREAT EXPANSION'

He said the new institution, which saw its charter approved by Parliament Friday, will bring about a "great expansion" in the province's economy.

"I'm more optimistic about B.C. development now than I ever was before," he said.

To express that optimism, he said he and his family would invest "many thousands" of dollars in the bank's stock which is expected to sell at $25 per share. He would not say exactly how much his investment would total.

'WITH FAVOR'

Nor would he say whether the government's present $100 million deposits in all chartered banks would be consolidated in a single deposit in the new bank.

"I'm not saying what government policy will be except that the government of B.C. looks with favor on the new bank."

"But there is still going to be lots of room for the other chartered banks in this province because the expansion that will come as a result of this bank will mean more business for everyone."

Building Pace Nudges Closer To '65 Figures

Construction activity in Greater Victoria is edging closer to comparative figures for last year.

Measured by the dollar value of building permits, construction worth $20.4 million has been authorized in the first 11 months of this year.

The 11-month figures broke down to $13.1 million in Saanich, $13 million in Victoria, $2.2 million in Esquimalt and $1.9 million in Oak Bay.

For the same period last year, the breakdown was: Victoria, $17.6 million; Saanich $11.2 million; Oak Bay, $3.8 million; and Esquimalt, $1.1 million.

In November, permits worth $1.9 million were issued in Victoria; $1.2 million in Saanich; $38,888 in Oak Bay and $22,100 in Esquimalt.

HERB CAPOZZI ... moves throne speech

Swearing In New Cabinet Set Monday

Two more harbingers of the approaching legislative session were released by Premier Bennett this morning.

He announced that Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver-Centre) and Dr. H. R. McDiarmid (SC—Alberni) would be mover and seconder, respectively, of the reply to the speech from the throne.

Both freshmen MLAs who gained entry to the government's back-benchers in the Sept. 12 election, they will make Jan. 25, the day following the legislature's 100th anniversary opening ceremony in New Westminster.

Mr. Bennett also said there will be a swearing-in ceremony at Government House Monday for new cabinet ministers.

He said these will include a health minister and Isabel Dawson (SC—MacKenzie), Pat Jordan (SC—North Okanagan) and Grace McCarthy (SC—Vancouver-Little Mountain) as ministers without portfolio.

He declined to reveal identity of the man he has picked to replace retiring Health Minister Eric Martin or to say whether there would be any more ministerial appointments.

Shelf Plan Alarm Clock For Canada

Premier Bennett today said the government's reserve on the continental shelf was in the same category as B.C.'s famous submarine fleet.

He said both actions were needed "to wake up the government of Canada."

The premier told reporters he rejected Prime Minister Pearson's remonstrance that a province could not change its boundaries.

"We're not extending it. It (the continental shelf) always has been our boundary," he said.

"We're just putting a reserve on it to stop squatters sneaking in."

He was asked how the province proposed to detect under-sea squatters.

"We have our navy," he replied—then burst out laughing "Canada's," in anticipation of the next question.

Swastikas Painted On Sidewalk

Vandals painted swastikas on the sidewalk, damaged a public washroom again and left their mark in Ross Bay Cemetery once more over the weekend.

Police today blamed drinking youths for part of the destruction. Officers called to the 1100 block Oscar Saturday found two swastikas in white paint splashed on the sidewalk. Eggs had been thrown against windows of one house. A chain store shopping cart was also found at the scene.

A St. Charles Street resident later reported seeing two men entering Ross Bay Cemetery the previous night.

Police found beer bottles in the cemetery and some flowers had been trampled on.

And in the Centennial Square men's washroom somebody tore paper holders from the wall, smashed a toilet bowl and started a fire which caused "considerable" damage.

Witnesses Dedicate Controversial Hall

A two-year battle with Victoria city council ended Saturday night with the dedication of a new Kingdom Hall at 1095 Joan Crescent by the Jehovah's Witnesses of Greater Victoria.

Two applications to build on the property were refused by council despite recommendations in favor of the Witnesses by the city advisory planning commission.

A third application in 1964 was granted on the advice of city solicitor T. P. O'Grady and city manager Dennis Young.

VOLUNTEER LABOR

The new Kingdom Hall at Joan Crescent was built largely by volunteer labor at a cost of about $20,000. It was officially dedicated Saturday by Victor Osborn, presiding minister of the Fairfield congregation, in the presence of more than 200 Witnesses.

"We dedicate this building to the pure worship of Jehovah God," he said.

Clifford Roberts of the central congregation of Victoria recalled that the first assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses was established here in 1913 with only 25 members.

700 WITNESSES

"Today more than 700 Witnesses are active in Greater Victoria," he said.

Fred Johnston of the Fairfield congregation praised Toronto lawyer Glen How, QC, who spearheaded the Witnesses' third application to city council. He said Mr. How had given distinguished service to the sect

Pickets Force Major Chains To End Games

By SALLY RYAN

NEW YORK (AP) — After protests from picketing housewives, two U.S. supermarket chains have decided to drop promotional games.

Some others indicate they may follow suit when their current promotions end, an Associated Press survey showed.

In Kansas City, games may be on the way out altogether. Three supermarket groups there have dropped games in which customers win prizes.

Safeway Stores Inc., second-largest supermarket operation in the United States, announced this week it would get out of the game business in January—although its bonus bingo was credited for half of the chain's 1966 sales increase.

"They've run their course," said Robert Magowan, Safeway chairman. "We don't think they have raised prices, but if the housewife thinks that, we won't fight her."

Purity Stores Inc., an 84-store chain in northern California, dropped its sweepstakes games earlier, and offered a choice of blue chip stamps or a cash rebate of slightly more than 15 cents on $10.

"It has become abundantly clear to us that games have lost their popularity," said Harold Ward, Purity president.

A AND P UNDECIDED

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., which operates the largest U.S. chain, said in New York last week it was neither adding nor dropping promotional games now.

"But that doesn't mean tomorrow or next week we won't change," an A and P spokesman said.

"It is something always under study, and we leave it to our five divisions to work out their own promotions to fit local situations."

Then in Kansas City, A and P joined Kroger Co. and Milgram Stores, a Kansas City chain, in dropping games.

Currently A and P doesn't have any games in its eastern division, from northern New Jersey to New England, but does in its other four divisions.

Kroger Co. in Cincinnati, Ohio, third-largest chain, issues trading stamps and runs an assortment of games.

BOOST SALES "We consider games and contests normal promotional programs, designed to generate the high volume supermarkets must have in order to merchandise at low prices," a Kroger spokesman said, before the Kansas City announcement was made.

The games such as Bonus Bingo and televised horse races came under fire this fall from housewives protesting that they added to food prices.

Safeway probably would have continued bonus bingo or started a new game if it hadn't been for the housewives' protests, Magowan said.

One firm, Strategic Merchandising Corp. of New York, has sold Bonus Bingo and other games to 4,800 supermarkets—including Safeway, A and P and National Tea.

It estimates the games paid nearly $8,000,000 in cash to 1,900,000 winners in the year ended Sept. 30—before the boycotts began.

In Portland, Ore., a spokesman for Fred Meyer Inc., which has Let's Go to the Places, said a decision on the game's future was being left to customers.

"If the customers don't want them, we will be happy to pass the savings along," a spokesman said.

Winnipeg Clerks Vote For Strike

WINNIPEG (CP) — Retail clerks employed by four supermarket chains voted in favor of strike action Sunday to back demands for salary increases that would give them parity with Vancouver clerks.

No date for the strike was set by Local 832 of the Retail Clerks' International Union.

A spokesman said 81 per cent of the 923 persons casting ballots favored strike action. There are 1,600 members in the local.

An estimated 57 stores owned by Safeway, Loblaw's, Dominion and Shop-Easy would be hit by the strike which, said a spokesman, may be called this week if negotiations do not progress.

REJECT OFFER

The union rejected a two-year contract which included a cumulative increase of 50 cents an hour during its lifetime. It called for a 20-cent-an-hour increase retroactive to Oct. 31, five cents May 1, 10 cents Nov. 6 and May 6, 1968, plus five cents when it would have expired Nov. 6, 1968.

Leader Hurt, Woman Killed In Collision

TORONTO (CP) — A car driven by Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario leader of the New Democratic Party, crossed a median strip on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway Sunday night and collided head-on with another car, killing Mrs. Mary Doddatto, 47, of nearby Rexdale.

Mr. MacDonald, 52, and the woman's husband, Andrew Doddatto, 50, are both reported in fair condition in hospital today.

The NDP leader was unconscious for an hour after the accident and suffered a possible fracture in the upper part of his spine, head injuries which required 27 stitches and bruises.

Police said Mr. MacDonald's car braked suddenly to avoid hitting a line of traffic stopped in the eastbound lane of the freeway.

MIGHT HAVE TOPPLED SAIGON GOV'T

Ho Wanted To Talk But U.S. Said No!

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — President Johnson, in a letter to U Thant congratulating him on his re-election as UN secretary-general, said he will give "closest personal attention" to UN peace problems.

Meanwhile, Thant told a Newsweek magazine interviewer that Washington refused peace talks he tried to arrange with North Viet Nam in 1964-65, saying it feared even the rumor of a meeting might topple the Saigon government.

There was no apparent connection between Johnson's letter and Thant's interview. A state department spokesman said there would be no immediate comment on the Newsweek article.

Unanimously elected Friday by the UN General Assembly to a new five-year term, Thant told the assembly he would keep repeating that "this war must be ended" and that he would "make every effort on a personal basis" to promote a solution.

In the interview with Newsweek columnist Emmet John Hughes, Thant said he worked from September, 1964, to January, 1965, with the late Adlai Stevenson, then U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, to try to set up peace talks.

SAY HO NOT SERIOUS

The state department in November, 1965, admitted Thant had informed it North Viet Nam was willing to talk with the United States in Rangoon, Burma. The department said it declined because "all our indications were that there was no serious intent on the other side."

Thant said in the interview that in September, 1964, he got in touch with North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh through the Russians and Ho agreed to unofficial talks with Washington. He said Washington was informed but did not reply.

In January, Thant said, he pressed Stevenson for Washington's reaction and was told separate U.S. soundings through Canadian channels in Hanoi had convinced Washington Ho was not serious.

Later that month, Stevenson, acting on his own, asked Thant where and on what level talks could take place. Thant suggested a meeting between U.S. and North Vietnamese envoys in Rangoon, Burma. Burma agreed to such a meeting, Thant said, but Washington rejected it on grounds that even the rumor of peace talks might topple the Saigon government.

Thant notified Hanoi of Washington's refusal and 24 hours later the American bombing of North Viet Nam began.

The Newsweek article reported that high American officials confirm privately that President Johnson was "largely unaware of the essential facts of Thant's peacemaking efforts" until he visited Thant at the United Nations last month on the eve of his tour of Asian countries.

Later that month, Stevenson, acting on his own, asked Thant where and on what level talks could take place. Thant suggested a meeting between U.S. and North Vietnamese envoys in Rangoon, Burma. Burma agreed to such a meeting, Thant

Why Are Canadians Such a Restless People?

The 'Overcrowding' Of Body and Spirit

By GERALD CLARK

(This is the first in a series of articles by Mr. Clark, well-known Canadian author and associate editor of the Montreal Star.)

We are living in the most affluent society in history, yet it is the most restless. That is, more people apparently are discontented, anxious or confused about values in life than ever before.

Two segments alone, youth and labor, depict the unease of Western man through rebellion and strikes. But other distinctive groups — the middle-aged, for example — also reflect the new and often disturbing forces.

Why is there so much disquiet?

The sociologists, psychiatrists and theologians are hardly unanimous about the reasons; and they admit only the vaguest notions of possible solutions. But there is fairly general agreement that some trenchant conditions exist today that were unknown only a generation or two ago.

For one thing, we are suffering from overcrowding. It is not the simple, flagrant kind of overcrowding that blights such teeming countries as India and China. In North America it takes on a subtle, devastating psychological form.

Simultaneously, we are caught up in the revolution of electronics, most dramatically illustrated by television, a medium which we understand only superficially but which is having a profound impact on every one of us.

Grim Warning

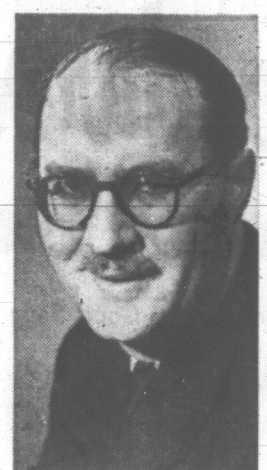

Marshall McLuhan, the latest savant of communications, says we live in "an information environment." Because of the grim way he says it, we had better take warning.

We are confronted with more knowledge than ever believed possible; it doubles in volume every 15 years. Obviously, we are unable to grasp more than a fraction of it. We compound our confusion by wondering whether, in adding to facts, we have suffered a loss of spiritual ideals or even, ironically, a loss of what is sometimes called "challenge."

The very real importance of challenge is demonstrated in a recent study in Montreal by researchers from McGill University and the University of Montreal. Part of the study dealt with juvenile delinquency in a densely populated area in the centre of the city.

Almost all families were of the same levels of low income and inferior housing.

But a remarkable distinction soon became evident between two main groups: those who could trace their roots in Canada back several generations and those who had migrated from Europe only in the last decade or so. Children, from age six to 18, showed among the long-established Canadians a "high pathology tract" 35 per cent at one time or another had.

GERALD CLARK

been taken to court for car thefts or other crimes. Among the "New Canadians" the incidence was low; between two and three per cent in trouble.

The researchers came up with several explanations. One of the most obvious was that European family life tended to be closely and wholesomely knit.

But the prime conclusion was simply that the newcomers possessed a sense of challenge. They had heard of the opportunities in Canada and were determined to move from slum quarters as quickly as possible. Thus it was worth their while to struggle, often with wife as well as husband working, to face a wide-open contest in advancement.

Undoubtedly most will move on; a significant percentage already have graduated to better jobs and better districts.

In contrast, many of the old Canadians are bogged down by a resigned feeling that they are not going anywhere. Parents show little interest in improving the lot of their families. This negative attitude, the abandonment of the contest, is felt by the children and mirrored in their delinquency.

Need for Challenge

The need for positive challenge or involvement is, of course, not a new phenomenon. It has always existed, as have other forces that remain with us. But several factors coming together—the old and the new—are threatening to distort the meaning or continuity of a supposedly advanced Western culture.

The old story is familiar, since it has been written repeatedly in the last 50 or 60 years. Broadly, it tells of huge waves of migrants from overseas and of millions of people here on the prowl.

Industrial developments everywhere have wrenched men and women from agrarian surroundings and thrust them into cities, in the midst of strangers and strange ideas and strange patterns of living. Two world wars have intruded, along with a major depression and a half-dozen recessions.

Nevertheless, despite periodic uncertainty, we have made great gains in establishing for ourselves safer, healthier and longer lives.

In the process, we have built up anxieties. The more we enjoy, the more we are beset by fears that we will lose some of our comforts.

The psychiatrist, in recalling this background, is now impelled to look also at fresh data. It is only in the last few years that impressive studies have been conducted to show the effects of density of population piled onto the previously known psychological problems.

"We have always accepted that people need time to solve their problems," says Dr. A. W. MacLeod, director of the Mental Hygiene Institute of Montreal. "Now we have to accept that they also need room to solve their problems."

More and more scientists are pointing out that there is a key element in our existence that we are only now beginning to comprehend: The importance of "space" or "territory."

Experiments with fish, birds, rats and other animals indicate that they become aroused—chiefly when their territorial space is invaded or threatened.

In humans, there is a suggestion that each person requires a bubble of space about him, a shield to give him psychological security. The area is variable in shape and dimension from person to person and from time to time, but it is also remarkably consistent in that it fills a ritualistic purpose: to ensure that each person has a place in the community.

It is not much different from the way turkeys act in clusters; some are relegated to the periphery of their group and, when they come into contact with the perimeter of other groups, they start pushing.

Interest Roused

Interest in the subject has been stimulated largely by the work of Konrad Lorenz, the Austrian naturalist and pioneer in ethology, the study of instinctive behavior. Lorenz, whose latest book, "On Aggression," has attracted wide attention, notes that rats are social and peaceful beings within their clan but "veritable devils" even toward fellow-members of their own species that try to intrude on the established community.

Man's social organization, he says, is similar.

As an easy illustration, he suggests that the intricacy of the spacing out of territories can be observed in railway carriages: "All the rude behavior patterns serving for the repulsion of seat-competitors and intruders, such as covering empty places with coats or bags, putting up one's feet, or pretending to be asleep, are brought into action against the unknown individual only. As soon as the newcomer turns out to be even the merest acquaintance they disappear and are replaced by rather shamefaced politeness."

Another European scientist, Dr. Paul Leyhausen, claims that five years in prisoner-of-war camps taught him that overcrowded human societies reflect the symptoms of overcrowded wolf, cat, goat, mouse, rat or rabbit communities "to the last detail." The inner machinery of absolute social hierarchy is not so obvious at first glance, he says; it emerges when crowding sets in.

Cause of Neuroses

But more than this, he has "no doubt whatever that a great number of neuroses and social maladjustments are partially or totally, directly or indirectly, caused by overcrowding."

No one has yet determined at what point density creeps surreptitiously beyond the tolerance limit of man. It is a matter of urgent consequence to Leyhausen.

"In recent years," he writes in "Discovery," a British journal, "there has been growing concern about the so-called population explosion and the measures to be taken to avoid overcrowding. However, this is mostly understood to mean that an attempt should be made only to slow down the population increase so that the production of supplies, predominantly food, can catch up and if this is achieved, everything will be fine."

Tolerance Limits

"Contrary to current discussion, the danger of overpopulation does not rest solely on the need for food and shelter. It lies in whether the population will exceed the limits of human tolerance towards the presence of other humans."

Layhausen concludes that if the present trend continues, nobody will be able to move about without interfering irritatingly with the next person's movements and "at least half of the population will have to be psychiatrists tending the neuroses of the other half."

Not all psychiatrists will accept Layhausen's gloomy prognosis. But an increasing number, here as well as in Europe, are talking of the effect of overcrowding on the spirit as well as on the body.

Uruguayans Back Presidential Rule

J. HALCRO FERGUSON

LONDON — Last week the people of Uruguay, which prides itself on being the most democratic nation in South America, decided that democracy can be carried too far. They voted to have a president again.

For 14 years and eight months the little country had made the experiment of doing without a head of state — a remarkable departure from the norm in a continent known for "strong men." The desire to limit the power of the executive was one of the reasons why a new constitution was approved by plebiscite in December 1951, and brought into force on March 1952.

The constitution replaced the presidency by a national council of nine men, six drawn from the majority party and three from the party polling the next largest number of votes, so that in effect the opposition was represented in the government. Elections were held every four years, and four majority members of the council presided over it in turn for a year each. The cabinet, consisting of nine ministers, was nominated by the council as a whole.

The council itself was watched over by a body curiously called "the Tribunal of Administratively Contentious Matters," which was appointed by the legislature, the two-chamber National Assembly, as a further check on executive abuses. The system furthermore was not confined to the national level, but operated in each of the 19 departments, analogous to counties, where the chief executive post of intendente was also abolished.

This elaborate machinery was not designed principally to preclude the possibility of dictatorship, of which Uruguay stands in less danger than any other South American country. Its principal purpose was to solve a peculiarly Uruguayan problem, posed by the fact that since the beginning of the century every single election had been won by the Colorados, one of the country's two major parties, the unfortunate losers being the Blancos.

The names of the parties (which mean Red and White) originated in the early 19th century, when Uruguay was in an endemic state of civil war, and the rival bands used colored favors to distinguish themselves.

The Colorados emerged as basically the urban party with a tendency towards the left, while the Blancos became the rural party, with a more conservative attitude. This orientation gave the Colorados a built-in advantage since, while Uruguay's economic base is rural — mostly sheep and cattle — her population is predominantly urban, one-third living in the capital, Montevideo.

To redress the balance, the Colorados in an unprecedented gesture of political generosity, introduced the constitution of 1952 allowing the opposition to tread the corridors of power. By a supreme irony, at the next elections the Blancos gained a majority for the first time in modern history, and the Colorados were the first beneficiaries of the system designed to benefit their opponents.

But the "collegiate" system, as it was known, proved less admirable in practice than it had promised to be in theory. The checks and balances went far beyond preventing the executive from exercising undue power — they virtually prevented it from doing anything at all.

In this national decision, the population chose by a comfortable majority to return to a presidential system. At the same time they voted — by a still unchanged and highly intricate system of proportional representation — to oust the Blancos and return the Colorados to power.

The third party, the left-wing FIDEL — its initials deliberately chosen to spell the first name of the Cuban prime minister — came a very poor third. Extremism of the left failed to take advantage of a promising situation. Extremism of the right did not even raise its head. So the first president under the new dispensation is a retired army man, General Oscar Cestido. He is also a Colorado.

New Democrats on the Rise; What Are Their Objectives?

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College, York University. Mr. Fisher, a former NDP MP, lectures in Canadian government at Carleton University.)

What is the difference between the New Democrats and the Liberals? Why do some New Democratic leaders on the federal scene still talk as if they were in the 1930s?

On several recent occasions these two questions about the NDP have been put by the same person in conversation or have appeared in the same written statement. One might have thought that one question would preclude, or answer the other, but that apparently isn't the case.

The fortunes across Canada of the New Democrats are rising sharply. Opinion polls had put them level with the Conservatives even before the latter's unhappy and divisive Ottawa conference. More articles are appearing in the small city and weekly press on Mr. Douglas' party than ever before.

A widely syndicated Ottawa report appearing in late November refers to "the steady climb in public support recorded month by month by the NDP."

It says this "makes that party a real threat to the old federal parties for the first time in our history." The columnist baldly claims, "Public support for the New Democratic Party is climbing steadily, as electors move away in disgust from both the accident-prone Liberal Party and the Conservative Party driven by internal strife."

It is not surprising therefore that more pieces are appearing in the press on New Democratic policy, more questions are being asked—even at times contradictory questions like the ones above.

All of this by way of introduction to a moderate but clear statement in the House of Commons last week by New Democratic leader T. C. Douglas on domestic economic objectives and tools. Mr. Douglas said:

1. He could think of no question which is of greater interest to all Canadians than the steadily rising cost of living and the spiraling of consumer prices. This has a most adverse effect upon those who live on fixed incomes, old age pensioners, superannuates, veterans pensioners, people who live from rent on small properties and people who are not able, in a competitive market, to demand a larger income to compensate for the higher cost of living.

2. The Economic Council of Canada has pointed out that from 1957 to 1965 the wastage in Canada by our failure to use our full potential production cost the Canadian people $21 billion. That is an amount of $1,200 for every man, woman and child. That is $6,000 for a husband, wife and three children.

3. The New Democratic Party contends that the rising cost of living is due to two factors.

First, to the inequitable distribution of the national income, and second, to a misallocation of our human material and financial resources. It has become popular for some newspapers and some politicians to lay the entire blame on the fact that wages have increased. The argument goes this way: increased wages push up the cost of living, the increased cost of living means that workers want more wages, and therefore we are in a vicious circle. All the facts that can be adduced prove this contention is not true.

4. From 1960 to 1965 the labor cost per ton of steel in Canada dropped from $27.52 to $22.16, a decline of 55.36 per cent. In this period the profits of the steel industry went up 106 per cent. The Economic Council of Canada points out that the basic labor cost per unit of output in manufacturing in Canada fell by 11.3 per cent, between 1960 and 1965. It is difficult for anyone to argue that increased wages pushed up the cost of living.

5. There have been some attempts to blame the farmers for the increase in the cost of food, but what is significant is that although the prices of many of the food items have risen, the return to the farmers has actually gone down. In the 12-month period when bread went up 2 cents a loaf, the price of wheat dropped 17 cents a bushel. During the past summer when Canada Packers employees were on strike with the resulting glut on the hog market and the price of hogs on the Toronto market dropped by anywhere from $2 to $3 a hundredweight, the price of bacon went up by 15 cents a pound.

6. In the evidence of Mr. Bryce, Deputy Minister of Finance, in the second report of the consumer credit committee hearings there is a fascinating table. It shows that between 1949 and 1965 the share of our national income that went to wage and salary earners—whether white-collar, blue-collar, or executives—increased only 7.7 per cent, while the share which went to people who live off investment—whether in equity, bonds, mortgages or rents—went up 17.3 per cent. The share which went to the farming population increased only 1.7 per cent.

7. Mr. Louis Rasminsky, the governor of the Bank of Canada, recently said in a speech in Rome what the New Democrats have been trying to impress on the Minister of Finance for the past two years. Mr. Rasminsky pointed out that fiscal and monetary controls are no longer adequate to maintain stability in our economy and to provide a fair distribution of national income. The time has come for supplementary programs and policies, and there must be guidelines, imperative guidelines, to establish a fair and proper relationship between wages, prices and profits. There has to be a better distribution of the national income in Canada, on humanitarian and economic grounds.

Without question this is geared to the 1960s, but where is there an important Liberal who is talking this way?

Rudy Vallee Hauls Out His Megaphone

MEGAPHONE CROONER RECORDING HITS AGAIN

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Because of a crazy new hit record called Winchester Cathedral, Rudy Vallee finds himself hauling out his megaphone once more.

For the benefit of the new generation that knows him only as the stuffed-shirt magnate of How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, it should be explained that Vallee was the Beatle of the aspirin age. Through the depression years his nasal baritone was heard in ballrooms, theatres and through radios and phonographs.

He was the first of the crooners.

"I never had a very strong voice," he says, "and the only way I could be heard—this was before loudspeakers—was with a megaphone."

The conical cardboard gave his voice a distinctive sound, and it has been reproduced in the curious new record, Winchester Cathedral, by a British outfit called the New Vaudeville Band.

The first Vallee heard about it was when a Hollywood record company called him while he was appearing a few weeks ago in a St. Paul, Minn. nightclub. "How would you like to make some records?" he was asked. "Are you out of your mind?" said the blunt Vallee. "Some days I can't even talk, much less sing."

He was told about the Winchester Cathedral record, and he said he would listen to it before making up his mind. Vallee didn't care for the record at first, but he admitted its dripping nostalgia grows on the listener.

By the time Vallee had returned to Hollywood, four record companies wanted him to make his own rendition of Winchester Cathedral, as well as other tunes. He chose Viva records, a subsidiary of Dot.

He recorded the hit tune, along with some others of his own era: The Whiffenpoof Song, Sweetheart of Sigma Chi, Who, and My Blue Heaven.

Vallee still has the red megaphone he first used while singing with a five-piece society band at Maine resorts in 1924.

Now a pink-cheeked 65, Vallee expects no rebirth of his singing fame. He plans to continue pursuing his acting career, and may turn up on Batman soon.

Anil's Happy Story Ended in Tragedy

NEW DELHI (AP)—A year ago the co-operative efforts of some New York doctors and Lions Clubs in Medicine Hat, Alta., and New York's Bronx made it possible for a teenage Indian boy to undergo heart surgery in New York City.

Specialists at St. Barnabas hospital closed a one-inch opening between the aorta and the pulmonary artery in the chest of Anil Kumar Rao.

The next day—Nov. 8, 1965—Anil celebrated his 15th birthday. Three days later he was walking around. Dr. Charles Bailey, director of the hospital's cardiovascular surgery department, said Anil "should be able to return to India and take up the life of a completely normal boy."

After his return home to Secunderabad, near Hyderabad, Anil slowly but steadily became more active.

Anil joined his school baseball team. Only recently he ran in a 100-yard race. He joined the air wing of India's national cadet corps, not long ago. He handled a crowbar with other cadets helping build a village road.

Today this delayed report was received from Secunderabad: "After cracking jokes with his father, Anil went to bed at 11 p.m. Friday. Within a few minutes he woke up screaming, his pillow clutched in his hands. Before anyone could even offer him a glass of water, Anil was dead."

The cause of death was not known in New Delhi.

Artists to Exhibit Chinese Paintings

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The work of a group of artists, who took up oriental painting a little more than a year ago, is on exhibition this week at 605 Courtney St. at Government.

It's an interesting exhibition as it shows that occidentals with perseverance can master the techniques and skills of oriental painters.

Some of the artists have even reached the stage where they can start experimenting—a difficult process because of the strict rules of discipline which govern the various schools of Chinese art.

One exhibitor, Pat Shepherd, is so successful with her colors that her landscape painting looks like a genuine work of the Ming dynasty.

The paintings of Stephanie Steel and Joe Gartham also could easily pass for the works of some Chinese artist—especially their bird and flower scenes.

Other works—all of high standard—are by Beulah Leigh, A. Higham, Margaret West, Mrs. N. C. Foster, Pat Barber and Ruth Ralston.

The show is a credit to Stephen Lowe, well-known Chinese artist, who taught the artists the techniques of Chinese painting.

The group in itself is unique. It's only one of its kind in Western Canada dedicated to painting in the oriental style. All are westerners, ranging between the ages of 20 to 55.

The exhibition ends next Sunday evening.

CONCERT REPEATS TONIGHT

Possessor of Rare Voice, Crowd Shouted for More

By AUDREY JOHNSON

A thing that is rare as well as beautiful is usually an item for the fortunate to collect and cherish in privacy: a painting, a sculpture, a book, an instrument, an ornament.

But the human voice can be rare and beautiful and its pleasures available to anyone willing to spend a small sum and a little time to attend a concert hall or buy a record.

Ricard Floer has such a voice.

The Norwegian artist sang Sunday afternoon to an audience of upwards of 500 in the McPherson Playhouse.

No one moved toward the exits at the end of the program. They clapped and shouted for more and Ricard sang on, effortlessly, happily, for another 15 minutes.

Possessor of one of the rarest of male voices, a truly beautiful, finely trained lyric tenor, he will perform the same program—with slight variations—tonight at the McPherson at 8:30.

Strong, virile, superb in texture and resonance, this is a voice wonderfully smooth and uniform in production throughout its range.

Mr. Floer sings everything with ease and clearly with enjoyment, phrasing and coloring with careful musical attention.

IDEAL PLAYER

In this program he has as a supple and intuitive partner at the piano, Victoria's Bryan Gooch.

Mr. Gooch, who obviously has all the instincts of an ideal ensemble player, contributed richly to the first moments in the seven choruses.

An Italian group and two Mozart arias (from Così fan Tutte and Magic Flute) were enjoyable from sheer sensual delight in beautifully produced sound, although the arias could have been less formal and more dramatic.

In fact, this sense of concert stage formality had the effect of keeping the singer rather remote and, despite his many musical attributes, somewhat cool.

Among the set of short Grieg songs there were some vivid moments, and then came the group of folk songs and serenades sung self-accompanied on the guitar.

And here was the moment of truth.

Here Ricard Floer's voice was not only a sensual pleasure but heart-stirring as well. Here, properly revealed, was the romance and warmth, the humanity, that had been obscured before.

Admittedly concert stage and folk singing styles differ, but Mr. Floer, who has so much going for him, does need to infuse some of his folk warmth of communication into his classical style.

Then he would be very, very close to being the ideal concert artist.

SURVIVE PLANE CRASH

Wolves Howl Death But Couple Live

COLVILLE, Wash. (CP) — A Saskatoon couple who survived 11 days on a Washington State mountain after their light plane crashed said today "we never once gave up."

Mrs. Betty Brown, 32-year-old mother of six who had never been faced with survival in the bush, did all the right things to keep herself and her 35-year-old husband Roy alive.

They were rescued Sunday afternoon after being spotted by Ron Ruble of Colville. The rubber car was stuck in snow and they were driven to hospital in Colville by Harold Newell.

"It was just a question of sticking out the hardships and waiting for the right moment to start our walk down the mountain," Mrs. Brown said.

"We could hear the timber wolves howling in the woods around us during the night and they made us think of death."

"But we could see the lights of cars on the highway 7,000 feet below and this gave us our hope and we knew we could make it if rescuers didn't come for us."

The Brown's single-engine plane crashed on 7,213-foot Copper Butte about 30 miles south of the Canada-U.S. border Nov. 24 while they were en route to Vancouver for the Grey Cup football game.

A search was concentrated along their intended route through Canada and was about to be resumed when news of their rescue was reported by Mount Carmel Hospital.

"When we hit," Mrs. Brown said, "the plane, landed nose first."

"It was an awful jolt and Roy's head smashed hard into the dashboard."

She said the impact blinded him, he lost blood from facial cuts and he sprained his ankle and could not walk.

Mrs. Brown, uninjured, salvaged groceries, sleeping bags and a rifle from the wrecked plane. She lit a fire near the plane and boiled water from melted snow in a cake tin that happened to be in the aircraft.

She bathed her husband's wounds then salvaged a hatchet from the plane and cut him two makeshift canes.

"We slept in the plane for a while that first night," she said. "But it was angled steeply and was so uncomfortable that we finally decided to sleep under the stars."

The temperature in the region varied from 15° to 30 degrees, and there was snow on the ground.

"The next day (Friday) we decided to try and hike out to the highway I had seen far below the night before. It appeared about a mile away and I could see headlights down there," she said.

"But we didn't go even a quarter of a mile before turning back. Roy kept running into trees because he couldn't see and his foot was very painful."

They returned to the plane and nibbled on beans, peanut butter and caramel candy.

During the nights they heard the wolves and Mr. Brown told his wife: "If they come near you'll have to take the rifle and shoot them."

"Thank God," Mrs. Brown said, "they stayed away."

She said the continual bathing of her husband's wounds paid off four days after the crash when he began to regain his sight. They stayed at the plane three more days until lack of food drove them down the mountain.

"I packed all the essentials into a small suitcase and carried it myself," she said.

"Roy carried the sleeping bags. I said earlier that the highway appeared about a mile away. As it turned out it was more like eight miles."

They stopped each night during their trek and Mrs. Brown lit a fire with dry kindling she carried in a binocular case.

The Rubles were the first to hear Mrs. Brown's cries for help when she stumbled onto the highway.

The Browns had flown through U.S. territory to avoid a storm on their intended route from Cranbrook to Penticton in British Columbia.

Car-Truck Rear Crash
Fatal for Boy, WomanCHRISTOPHER BERRYMAN
... died in crash

A 15-year-old boy and a mother of three children died Sunday night as a result of a shattering rear-end collision on the Pat Bay Highway at Elk Lake.

Dead are Christopher Berryman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Berryman of 5174 Santa Clara, and Mrs. Pauline Wilk of 1278 Denman.

Three of the four people involved in the accident are in good condition in hospital.

Saanich police said the accident occurred at about 6:20 p.m. at the intersection of the highway and Piedmont Drive.

A southbound pickup truck with low-roof camper unit had stopped to make a left turn on to Piedmont when a car crashed into the rear of it. A passenger in each of the vehicles was fatally injured.

Driver of the light truck was Maurice Neal, 42, of 9170 Inverness in North Saanich, who was taking two of his son Brian's friends home after a day's outing at the Neal residence.

The three 15-year-olds, Brian, the Berryman boy and Dennis Trill of 5045 Wesley, were in the rear of the truck under the camper roof.

Officers identified the driver of the other car as George Wilk, 52, of 1278 Denman. His wife, Pauline, was a front-seat passenger.

Mrs. F. R. Minter of 5126 Patricia Bay Highway said the crash, "like an explosion," sent the rest of her family rushing out to the accident while she phoned the alarm. There was a near-collision at the same intersection Sunday morning, she said.

There are two southbound lanes and one for traffic north at the point of the crash which Mrs. Minter described as "terribly dangerous."

Mr. Neal said today he was knocked unconscious by the crash and when he came to spectators had lifted the camper roof from his truck. It had been knocked free in the collision.

Hiking
Chums
Killed

By TERRY IZZARD

A former Victoria boy and his city school chum were killed Sunday night hitchhiking home after visiting relatives.

The two were just south of Union Bay on the Trans-Canada Highway when a car smashed into them, killing both instantly.

Police identified one of the youths as Keith Peters, 15, of 431 4th Street, Nanaimo.

Parents of the other 16-year-old boy were on their way from Victoria at press time to identify him.

According to police, the two chums were returning from Campbell River when the accident occurred. It was 5:30 p.m. and already dark.

A northbound car, driven by Norman Farmer, 39, of Courtenay, pulled out to overtake another vehicle and plowed head-on into the boys.

When RCMP officers arrived, the boys were already dead in a nearby roadside ditch.

Keith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Peters, said their son had been to visit his friend in Victoria Saturday. On Sunday they hitch-hiked from Victoria to visit relatives in Campbell River.

Until two years ago, the Nanaimo family lived on John Street, Victoria, where their son attended North Ward Elementary School.

Since moving to Nanaimo, where Mr. Peters worked for

Firms Reject
Dock Formula

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Maritime Employers' Association has rejected a compromise formula to end a tie-up of ports in the province.

Edward M. Strang, association president, said today there will be no reconsideration of the compromise proposed Sunday by Labor Minister Nicholson.

Under the compromise about 200 dock foremen on strike for employer recognition would get grievance procedure and the right to form a unit without joining the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

The foremen, now members of Local 514 of the ILWU, approved the formula at a meeting Sunday night.

A spokesman for the foremen said after the meeting that Mr. Nicholson's proposals "when signed by the employers, will return foremen to work immediately."

Mr. Nicholson commented at the time that "it's gratifying that one side thinks an early return to work is desirable."

CRITICIZES FORMULA

Mr. Strang branded the formula a "device" and a "very primitive form of collective agreement."

He said the association "made it plain Sunday morning we would reject it—we told the labor minister well in advance what our attitude would be."

Mr. Nicholson was not immediately available for comment on the latest development in the dispute that has crippled cargo movement out of ports, resulted in a record backlog of deep-sea ships waiting for berths, and halted all grain movement.

Mr. Strang said a collective agreement is what the foremen wanted, with ILWU backing.

"They did not get it by going on strike so they went into a slowdown process and tried to force it that way," he said.

The foremen have to make up their minds, he said, whether they want to be foremen or longshoremen.

"This is a pressure move," he said. "Certainly the foremen would approve it because it's what they've wanted all

'Accept Formula
Forthwith'

Premier Bennett today made an urgent appeal to employers to accept a federal formula for settlement of the B.C. dock tie-up.

He complimented federal Labor Minister John Nicholson for proposing the formula and said he appreciated the foremen's decision to accept it.

"I call on management now, in the best interests of British Columbia, to accept the formula forthwith," Mr. Bennett added.

"It may not be the settlement they wanted, but I ask them to accept it forthwith."

Immediately following the premier's pleas, the employers went in to an emergency meeting to discuss the matter.

The formula proposed that foremen have the rights of grievance procedure and of association to process such disputes.

A management representative indicated it would be rejected because it could lead to inclusion of the foremen in a union.

The premier said the dispute was entirely within federal jurisdiction but was so important to the nation that he did not wish to appear to be sitting on the fence by concealing his feelings.

Mr. Bennett said the dock tie-up affects not only B.C. but the prairies and other parts of Canada.

Britain Moves
To Invoke
World Boycott

(Times News Services)

Britain moved tonight to invoke world-wide trade sanctions against Rhodesia after Premier Ian Smith's refusal to call off the breakaway colony's rebellion.

Smith told a crowd waiting outside his Salisbury office at 8 p.m.: "The fight goes on."

The terms for eventual rule by Rhodesia's black majority had been worked out in a conference between British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Smith in a weekend conference aboard the cruiser HMS Tiger in the Mediterranean.

Wilson gave Smith until noon today to accept the terms.

Smith said he accepted Wilson's proposed constitution but he is not willing to accept Wilson's terms for ending the Rhodesian rebellion and a return to what he called legality.

These terms apparently included giving power to the British-appointed governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, over the wanted only a "straight yes or no answer."

Smith asked for more time to consider and Britain granted a brief respite so the Rhodesian cabinet could meet in emergency session.

Then Rhodesia announced it would not accept the terms. Smith made it clear he was willing to accept constitutional proposals which fulfilled Britain's six basic principles as a basis for a constitution for an independent Rhodesia. These principles included guaranteed progress towards Negro majority rule.

He qualified his statement, however, saying Prime Minister Wilson's latest proposal under heading of a return to 'equality are repugnant to the Rhodesian

First Steps Taken at UN

Wilson was expected to spell out later tonight British intentions in a report to the House of Commons.

The British already have taken first steps towards reference of the dispute to the United Nations Security Council.

The draft resolution on sanctions is understood to call for a United Nations order banning trade in major Rhodesian exports, but without the threat of force or a blockade. It makes no mention of oil, a vital Rhodesian import. Some of the African representatives on the sanctions committee are demanding that oil be included.

South Africa has already stated it would not abide by any order cutting off trade with Rhodesia.

Wilson had warned Smith he
